Britain, France Reopen U.S. Aid Offer To Soviet

Coastguardsman Claims To Have Photograph As Discs Seen Widespread

LONDON (AP)—Britain and France have sent new notes to Russia expressing the hope that the Soviet decision to boycott the Marshall plan to aid Europe is "not final," a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

Disclosure of the new attempt to include Russia in the program came less than 24 hours after Foreign Secretary Bevin had warned Russia not to "provoke" the western world.

The spokesman said Britain had handed her note Friday to Georgi Zarubin, Soviet Ambassador in London, for transmission to his government, and that France had given a similar communication to Alexandre Bogomolov, Russian Ambassador in Paris.

The new notes were dispatched while European countries studied British-French invitations to a 24-power conference, opening in Paris July 12, to plan for an integrated European economy with U.S. financial assistance.

Bevin's warning to Russia was contained in a speech at London Friday night in which he asserted that regardless of Britain's desire for peace, others "can carry provocation too far."

TO TALK WITH BEVIN
Foreign Minister Bidault of France is expected here next week to discuss with Bevin further aspects of the Marshall proposal, the Foreign Office spokesman announced.

A Rome dispatch said the Italian Foreign Ministry had accepted with pleasure a British-

French invitation to attend a conference on the Marshall plan. Greece, Portugal, The Netherlands and Denmark also either have accepted or have indicated they will accept. Statements from other capitals gave reason for belief that five others—Turkey, Belgium, Switzerland, Elre and Iceland—also would attend.

London diplomatic observers said they expected at least 12 countries to reply favorably. Among those that probably will not they said are Yugoslavia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland—all under Soviet influence.

GROUNDWORK LAID
Britain and France, which have laid the groundwork for the conference, issued the invitations Thursday night. The day before, they had failed to get agreement from Foreign Minister Molotov to a program of European economic co-operation to take advantage of an offer of U.S. help made by State Secretary Marshall in a Harvard University speech June 5.

The French Foreign Ministry, through which the invitations were sent, disclosed the text Friday. Under an informal timetable the note sets up, the countries invited—every considerable one in Europe except the Soviet Union and Franco Spain—would answer by next Thursday, meet in Paris Saturday and set up committees to begin work July 15 and report before September 1.

Arab Communists Oppose Proposed Plan For Palestine

JERUSALEM (AP)—A spokesman for Arab Communists declared today that his group had rejected proposals for partitioning the Holy Land and supported the action of the Arab Higher Executive in boycotting the United Nations' special committee investigating Palestine problems.

The U.N. committee, in recess because of the Jewish Sabbath, has before it an official Zionist demand for a Jewish state in the Holy Land.

The Communist spokesman, Emil C. Touma, told a press conference that his organization, called "The National Liberation League," was "against American penetration and against the plan for world domination advanced by atomaniacs and monopolists in America and Britain."

He called for evacuation of the British troops from Palestine and declared establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine "would only be used as a base for Anglo-American imperialism which is at present preparing to crush the fight of Arab countries, to enforce upon them reactionary plans such as Greater Syria and eastern bloc plans and to promote war against new democracies and the Soviet Union."

Victorian To Attend British Army Course

OTTAWA (CP)—Five Canadian Army (active force) officers have been selected to attend the technical staff course beginning next October at the British Army Military College of Science, army headquarters announced today.

The course is of two years' duration, with new courses beginning annually, and, under present policy, the Canadian army is scheduled to send a group of candidates each year. Canadian representatives now attending the college will finish their course in 1948.

Officers selected to attend include Capt. I. M. Grant, D.S.O., of Victoria.

Empress Of Canada On Test Run July 9

GLASGOW (Reuter)—The 21,500-ton liner Empress of Canada, first Canadian Pacific passenger liner to return to normal transatlantic service, is to leave here for her trials July 9 and is scheduled to sail from Liverpool on her first postwar voyage to Canada a week later.

Police Of Windsor, Ont., Prevent Demonstration Against Yugoslav

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Police today prevented a demonstration directed at a 24-year-old Yugoslav war widow who works and lives at the Munro Hotel on Pitt Street here. Demonstrators charged she was a Nazi collaborator and a "war criminal."

They said she was a Fascist, former Chetnik guerrilla who boasted openly of having "killed children like chickens."

The girl, Vera Potkonjac, at one time came out to the hotel entrance. When she was told by friends she'd better come inside, she replied: "I want them to know I am not afraid."

She told a reporter, through an interpreter, that she had not written the letter she was charged with writing and added that it was all "Communist propaganda."

George Rosu, president of the All-Slav Alliance, said the demonstration would have been directed against the girl, not the hotel.

Police said demonstrations and picketing were illegal. "There is no union trouble here," one officer added.

"We think she should be punished as a war criminal," Rosu said Friday night after a joint meeting of the Leagues of Canadian Croats, Serbs and Slovenes.

Rosu identified the girl as a niece of the late Mrs. Mike Uzulak, whose husband is the proprietor of the Anderson Hotel, Amherstburg. He said the girl, whose entry to Canada about six months ago was sponsored by Uzulak, had expressed Fascist sympathies despite Uzulak's plea that she "leave politics alone."

The girl said: "He (Uzulak) ordered me out because I didn't agree with him in politics. They are Communists and I can not agree with their beliefs because the Communists killed my husband and all my family."

Boathouse Bombing 'Mystery' To Military

Four men escaped serious injury when a bomb, described as weighing from 50 to 100 pounds, fell from an unidentified plane and hit a Wittman, Mo., boatyard shop owned by J. Walter Jones. A second bomb exploded in a field about 50 yards away. In Washington, U.S. army and navy officials who investigated said they had no bomb-carrying planes in the vicinity at the time. Here a spectator looks at the damage.

Northwest, East India Vote Tomorrow On New States

NEW DELHI (AP)—Part of the people of India's explosive Northwest Frontier Province will begin voting tomorrow in an 11-day referendum to decide whether to join Pakistan or Hindustan in the partition of India which will become effective next month.

The Pathan tribesmen, whose fighting prowess is legendary, will not vote. The referendum has been boycotted by the Congress party, which now is in power in the province as a result of a general election nearly 18 months ago.

Forty British officers and some 60 Indian officers and men have been assigned to supervise the balloting. Special police powers have been granted to the military by the Viceroy, Viscount Mountbatten.

It is considered almost a foregone conclusion that more than 3,000,000 inhabitants of the so-called "settled districts"—as opposed to the tribal territory—will vote to join the Moslem Dominion of Pakistan.

On the other side of India, a referendum on the same question also will start tomorrow in the predominantly Moslem district of Assam.

George Laramie Suffers Stroke, Condition Serious

GEORGE LARAMEE

George Laramie, reputed to be Canada's oldest citizen, is in the Jubilee Hospital, suffering from a stroke, which has paralyzed his right side.

Mr. Laramie, who celebrated his 110th birthday last May 5, was stricken while getting dressed Thursday morning.

"When I looked in on him first thing in the morning he was as happy as could be," Mrs. J. T. Jones, 1016 Bewdley Avenue, Esquimalt, said. "He had been reminiscing and was laughing. After some time, I went in again and found him lying on the floor in a semi-conscious condition."

Mr. Laramie has lived with Mr. and Mrs. Jones for more than five years and has never been sick once in that time.

During his lifetime, the centenarian has been a miner, prospector, trapper, lumberman and soldier. He has always claimed that he was related to the late Sir Wilfred Laurier, Canadian statesman and Liberal leader.

He was born in a small village near Montreal in 1837 and first came to Victoria in 1867.

Dr. R. S. Conn, who is attending Mr. Laramie, says his condition is serious.

July 4 Fatalities In U.S. Up To 253

NEW YORK (AP)—July the Fourth week-end fatalities zoomed up to 253 today and the United States still had a day and a half to go before its Independence Day holidays ended.

Generally fair weather lured citizens throughout the country to sea and lakeside resorts, where drownings led in causes of death. Altogether 103 lost their lives by drowning, 98 in automobile accidents, 48 in other types of accidents including air crashes and four from fireworks explosions.

New York led in a fatality tabulation with 18 deaths, five in traffic accidents, nine from drowning and four from other causes. Texas was second with 16 and Pennsylvania and Michigan tied for third place, each with 13 fatalities.

Indian Loses Life

MISSION, B.C. (CP)—A 75-year-old Indian, Henry Joseph, was killed instantly Friday night when run over by a truck. Apparently he was sleeping on the grass near a fruit plant when the truck backed up and ran over him.

Mr. Joseph, who celebrated his 110th birthday last May 5, was stricken while getting dressed Thursday morning.

"When I looked in on him first thing in the morning he was as happy as could be," Mrs. J. T. Jones, 1016 Bewdley Avenue, Esquimalt, said. "He had been reminiscing and was laughing. After some time, I went in again and found him lying on the floor in a semi-conscious condition."

Polish Regime Gets Legal Power

WARSAW (AP)—The Polish Parliament today granted the government powers to issue decrees having the force of laws.

By this action the State Executive Council composed of President Boleslaw Belut, Parliament's Marshal, Sladyslaw Kowalski, three vice-marshals; and the Polish comptroller-general may make laws effective immediately but subject to approval at the next session of parliament.

New Job For Odlum

VANCOUVER (CP)—Maj. Gen. Victor Odlum, former Canadian Ambassador to China, now on sick leave at his home here, said today he would accept a new ambassadorial post. He withheld identity of the country to which he would be sent, except to say, it would be where the "majority of today's troubles lie."

Korea Talks Snag

SEOUL, Korea (Reuter)—Maj. Gen. Albert Brown, chief of the American delegation to the joint Soviet-American commission for working out a provisional government for all Korea, said here today that the talks had "run into serious snags."

Brown, just back from Pyongyang in the Soviet zone where the talks are being held, said that after five weeks of debate on the principles and methods for consulting Korean political parties on the form of government there was still not full agreement.

To Oppose Government

ROME (Reuter)—The Italian Communist Party today issued a formal "declaration of war" on the Christian Democrat government of Alcide de Gasperi, Italian Prime Minister.

Communist Ban On Great Lakes Investigated

OTTAWA (CP)—A High Labor Department official confirmed today that representations had been made on behalf of the Canadian Seamen's Union against Capt. R. Scott Misener, president of the Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Company, who wants to ban Communist union representatives from his ships.

The official said the department would take no action on the matter until "we've heard the other side of the case."

"We have asked Capt. Misener for a statement regarding his position and in the meantime we cannot form a judgment," he added.

Earlier, a federal arbitration board had ruled that it was not the concern of the company whether union representatives boarding ships held "certain political or religious beliefs, have criminal records or, indeed, have red or black hair."

TO STAND BY RULES

TORONTO (CP)—Capt. R. Scott Misener, president of the Sarnia and Colonial Steamships Ltd., said today he was consulting his solicitor to decide whether under a federal labor conciliation board's ruling he could bar "Communists" from his 24 Great Lakes ships.

"If my solicitor decides the ruling of the federal arbitration board in our dispute with the Canadian Seamen's Union means we must give passes to union representatives who are Communists, then we will abide by the ruling," declared Capt. Misener.

T. G. McManus, national secretary of the A.F.L. Union, who said Friday night he had wired Labor Minister Mitchell asking establishment of an industrial disputes investigation commission to probe the situation, said Capt. Misener was "drawing a red herring across the real issue" in the dispute and the union membership "might have to resort to strike action if the findings of the board were not carried out."

Cabinet For Morocco

PARIS (AP)—France today announced creation of a full-fledged cabinet for Morocco and said this was only the first of important reforms planned for that protectorate.

By agreement with the Sultan, Sidi Mohammed, the cabinet will be made up of 10 Moroccan and 10 French ministers. France will continue to assume responsibility for foreign affairs and national defense.

SEATTLE (AP)—A United States Coast Guardsman said today he believed he had taken the first picture of one of the mysterious "flying discs" which have been reported recently in flight above the western United States.

Frank Ryan, Coast Guard public relations officer, said he took the picture from his home north of Seattle after excited neighbors had told him of sighting it high overhead.

The results of his photographic effort showed as a tiny light spot, about the size of a pinhead, against the dark background of the evening sky.

He said the picture was taken when the disc was directly overhead.

His wife said they watched it for what seemed almost 10 minutes as it seemed to speed across the sky. She said her impression was of a shiny ball at great height.

SEEN BY SCORES

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The "flying saucer" mystery reached fever pitch today, after "I saw them myself" statements from a veteran United Air Lines crew, scores of Portland residents and 60 picnickers at Twin Falls Park in Idaho.

The pilot, co-pilot and stewardess, who had scoffed consistently at "flying saucer" tales, said they saw such objects Friday night while flying a passenger plane from Boise, Idaho, to Portland.

Their statements followed a day during which the "saucers" were reported seen above many parts of the United States and also in Canada.

Many Portlanders, including police, experienced fliers and three newspapermen, declared they had seen silvery discs undulating over Portland.

FATHER AND SON REPORT

In Saint John, N.B., Paul Falkjar and his father said they had observed a single object flying high at great speed. It was wafer-like and luminous, a description which tallied with those reported from Summerside.

Sixty persons picnicking at Twin Falls Park, near Twin Falls, Idaho, said they had seen discs Friday afternoon.

Dr. M. K. Leisy, a junior interne at the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental Diseases, and others in the western section of Philadelphia, reported sighting strange craft in the sky Friday night.

Black Ball Ferry Company May Be Forced To Tie Up Fleet

International ferry rates between Victoria, Seattle and Port Angeles will not be affected by the order of the Washington State Department which reduced Thursday its temporary 30 per cent boost granted to the Puget Sound Navigation Company to 10 per cent, effective Aug. 3, according to George Paulin, agent for the Black Ball Ferry Line.

Mr. Paulin said he believed the order only applied to ferries operating between Seattle and Bremerton and to other points in American waters.

Meanwhile, in Seattle, Capt. Alex Peabody, president of the Puget Sound Navigation Company, said today that unless a court order has been obtained by Aug. 3 permitting a rate increase greater than 10 per cent the company will tie up its 22 vessels, which includes the Chinook, operating between Victoria and the U.S. mainland.

Peabody promptly announced the firm will go into U.S. Superior Court soon in an effort to have the state order set aside.

"There's no business in Seattle could get by on 10 per cent more than what it was charging in 1937," Peabody declared.

"If we're held to the 10 per cent increase, we'll have to tie up the ferries, lay off our 1,000 employees and look for some other locality in which to operate. From 21 years of operating these ferries, I know we can't get by on that."

He said the company will continue to charge the 30 per cent higher rates until the Aug. 3 deadline.

Peabody said the company has used the estimated $400,000 extra revenue for operating expenses and the bond posted at the state's order to cover repayment if so directed amounts only to $100,000.

The Navigation company president said:

"The state is spending a lot of money to bring tourists here and we spent $2,225,000 to build a modern ferry for them—the Chinook. And now the state says we shouldn't have spent over $800,000. They must want people to ride a cattle boat."

Plane At Ketchikan

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Piper Cub seaplane, missing along the British Columbia coast line Friday, landed safely at Ketchikan, Alaska, R.C.A.F. officials here said today.

The small plane from Iron Mountain, Mich., was piloted by Urban Rahoi.

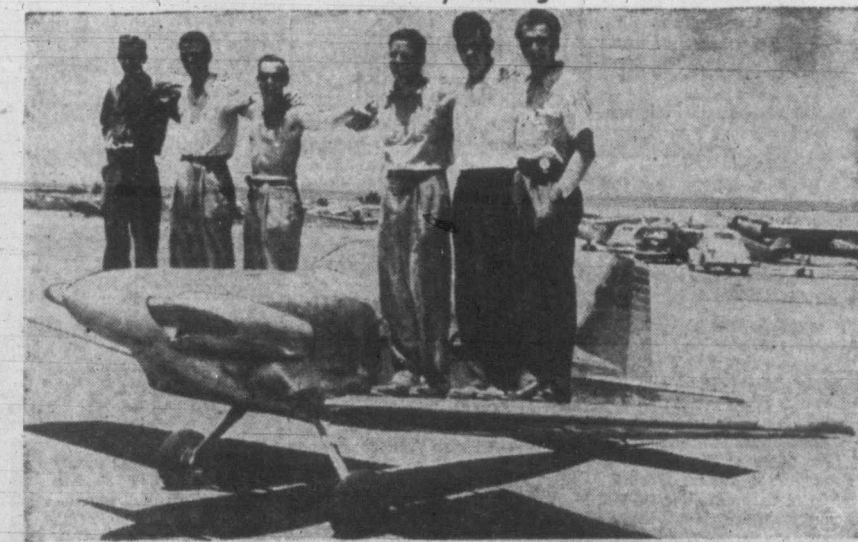

Rahoi took off from the Vancouver airport shortly before noon Thursday on a flight to Sullivan Bay, 250 miles up the coast.

28 'Lion Men' Sentenced To Die

DAR ES-SALAMN, Tanganyika (Reuter)—Twenty-eight death sentences have so far been passed on "lion men," or witch doctors, accused of 16 murders in the Singida district.

According to some accounts, the "lion men" wore lion skins, stalked their victims and dispatched them with knives. Thirty-five killings were reported to the police, of which six were, however, proved to be the work of man-eating lions.

'World's Smallest' Has Sturdy Wings

Six mechanics test strength of wing on smallest all-metal man-carrying airplane in world, an 800-pound midget racing monoplane. Lockheed pilots and engineers at Van Nuys, Calif., built the plane, powered with an 85-horsepower engine. Wingspan is only 19½ feet. Plane is four feet high. Speed is expected to reach 200 miles an hour.

Gasoline Price May Go Up If Production Costs Real

Without fanfare and in spite of its potentially tremendous economic impact, a new increase in the price of crude oil and heavy bunker oil has gone into effect in the western U.S. and must be followed shortly by an increase in prices of finished petroleum products in B.C., according to W. K. Whiteford, president of the British-American Oil, and Ralph Baker, president of the Standard Oil Co. in B.C.

Commenting on the statements of the two oil men, Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission here, said today, "If there are real costs—(the oil companies) are entitled to recompense themselves through the public."

Dr. Carrothers' immediate power is over the price of gasoline in B.C. but, while there is no control over the price of crude or bunker oil, he is empowered to control the price of these products if necessary. Speaking of the gasoline price, Dr. Carrothers said he would give every consideration to the oil companies but stressed the fact he had a responsibility to the public to make sure there was a real cost involved which would justify a gasoline price increase. The price, he said, "will only go up when I am satisfied an increase is necessary for the public to get gasoline."

In the meantime, he added, he was watching the prices of crude and bunker oil.

SEEKING MORE DEPOSITS

In presenting their case for increased prices, Mr. Whiteford and Mr. Baker, in a Vancouver statement, said it is a fact that except for the world-wide, if temporary, shortage of crude oil, cost might be kept down somewhat, but the shortage, coupled with the tremendously increased demand for heavy bunker, stove oil, kerosene and gasoline and the dozens of other petroleum products is forcing the industry to go out and seek more and more deposits at higher and higher costs.

Today there is a serious world shortage of crude oil, although according to Mr. Whiteford and Mr. Baker, that does not mean there is a shortage of petroleum deposits. They do not expect that in our lifetime.

However, there are many factors accounting for the present shortage. Demand for petroleum products today is at least 25 per cent above even the wartime peak. Transportation and labor material bottlenecks have brought about a crude shortage that may last as long as two years.

There are not enough tankers to keep up to the demand from South America and from Europe. In the East Indies, the damage done by the Japanese is still being repaired. Mr. Whiteford revealed the oil pipeline running from Portland, Me., to Montreal is operating at peak capacity but cannot handle the demand. The industry has been trying to install a second line, but the steel shortage has blocked that.

However, the oil men took pains to point out that so far through the war and to date—B.C. has been comparatively lucky in the matter of petroleum products' price boosts. Here is a comparison.

Since 1945, there has been an increase in crude oil prices in California oil fields averaging about 90 cents per barrel.

During the same period, the price of heavy bunker oil at Seattle has increased a total ranging from 65 cents to 80 cents a barrel.

In the same period the prices of diesel and stove oil have increased, more than four cents a gallon and the price of gasoline has increased 2.4 cents per gallon.

Having regard for duty, exchange rate, harbor tolls and the like, those price increases at Seattle would be comparable to substantially greater price increases here.

Yet, during this same period, the price of heavy bunker oil in Vancouver has increased only 35 cents a barrel, the prices of diesel and stove oil only approximately two and a half cents per gallon, and the price of gasoline not at all.

Now however, the price increases south of the border are expected to be reflected here in B.C. industry where consumers of heavy bunker oil include electric power producing plants, ships, locomotives, logging and pulp and paper industries, hotels and office buildings and practically every heavy industry in the province.

Although these B.C. consumers of bunker oil number only a few hundred, they buy and use a tremendous amount of the fuel, running into millions of barrels annually, the oil men stated.

G. I. Edgelow Heads Tourist Trade Group

Geoffrey I. Edgelow was unanimously elected chairman of the Tourist Trade Group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce at the group's annual meeting Friday. Mr. Edgelow succeeds J. E. Neely who has served as chairman for seven years. M. V. Chesnut was the unanimous choice for vice-chairman.

It was brought to the attention of the meeting that the Saanich council was considering to pass a by-law which would prohibit horseback riding through park trails and on the beaches. Following much discussion, the group appointed a committee of three to interview the council and find what grievance they had against riders.

"It would be a very backward step if the council took such action, because riding is one of the recognized recreational activities of any community," H. Cuthbert Holmes said.

Mr. Neely reported to the meeting of the recent air invasion of Victoria by private plane owners of Vancouver and Seattle.

He noted that 126 had come here, bringing a total of 368 passengers. The flight was very successful and Victoria should promote more of them, Mr. Neely said.

Alderman B. J. Gadsden, chairman of the aviation committee of the City Council, said the flight had shown Victorians "what can be done with private planes."

"I wish some of the people from Gordon Head, who are against the proposed air park, could have been out at the field to see how little noise they made," he said.

New Senior Officer

Wing Cmdr. Ross Baxter Ingalls, D.S.O., D.F.C., secretary of the Air Staff at Ottawa, has been appointed senior R.C.A.F. officer at Royal Roads, it was announced by Air Force Headquarters.

The discipline and training of cadets taking the air force course of studies at the college will come under the jurisdiction of Wing Cmdr. Ingalls.

Wing Cmdr. Ingalls is a native of Brantford, Ont., and during the war completed two tours with overseas bomber squadrons. He is also one of the first officers to complete his course under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Robbers Wound Two In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police are investigating the wounding and alleged attempted holdup of a man and a 17-year-old youth as they sat in their automobile early today. Both are recovering.

Patrick Horky, the youth, was shot in wrist and leg and James McGaughey, 30, wounded in the leg. They told police they were sitting in McGaughey's car when two men approached and ordered them to raise their hands "and pass over the money." When McGaughey started to drive off, the shots were fired through the window.

Man Seen Running Away From Fire On Store Street

After answering calls to put out five minor blazes between 10:20 and 10:38—a period of 18 minutes—the city fire department was also called at midnight to extinguish a fire in the entrance to a wooden building on Store Street next to the Station Hotel, which Fire Chief Joseph Raymond said was of incendiary origin.

The chief said that excelsior placed in the doorway of the building started the fire. Hardly had the firemen arrived with police at the scene when a false alarm was recorded at the station. Officials link the same person with both occurrences.

In regard to the Store Street fire, two women in the vicinity and Reg. Lachne, proprietor of the Rex Hotel, said they saw a tall man run from the scene of the blaze, which badly charred the door. They said the man ran across the tracks at the E. & N. railway yards toward Johnson Street Bridge.

Search for the man believed responsible for the fire is continuing.

The fires earlier in the evening were four grass flare-ups and a fire in the engine room of the McCarter Shingle Co. Ltd. There was little damage.

Lions Club Holds Installation Night

James Roberts was installed as president of the Victoria Lions Club at the annual installation banquet of the club which was held Friday night in the Empress Hotel.

Other officers installed were: Clarence Johns, first vice-president; Dr. William Milburn, second vice-president; Art Cann, secretary; and Walter Cullimore, treasurer.

Installed to the club's board of directors were: James Evans, Charlie Savage, Ted French and Don Rume. Arthur Quall was put into office as lion tamer and George Thackray as tail twister.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Thomas Bertram of Ladysmith, immediate past deputy district governor of Lions International, District 19.

Mr. Bertram complimented the Victoria Club for its year's activities and made special mention of the fact that the Victoria club had been the host for this year's district convention.

Retiring president, John B. Priestley, thanked the members of the club for their support and co-operation during the year.

Following the banquet, the members and their wives enjoyed dancing and a floor show.

All 3 Candidates In Halifax Call For Local Harbor Commission

HALIFAX (CP)—Despite the national character of Halifax's forthcoming federal by-election, the candidates have presented platforms designed to appeal to port workers of this city and the fishermen and farmers along the rugged shore from Secum to Paddy's Head.

Although the outcome of the July 14 test may strengthen or weaken the slim Liberal majority in the House of Commons, regional issues have had a prominent place in the campaign and all three candidates have agreed on local management of the port of Halifax, now controlled by the National Harbors Board.

Reconstruction Minister Howe, supporting the Liberal candidature of John Bickey, talked of more than $4,000,000 worth of dock installations for Halifax. Defence Minister Claxton, speaking from the same platform, promised to recommend "any satisfactory arrangement" under which the city would be given the use and care of the Citadel, the fortress around which this 200-year-old port was built.

John Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader, emphasized in a speech in support of A. A. (Big Alex) McDonald, his party's candidate, that "our policy is an all-Canadian policy, not one of sectional promises," but he supported Mr. McDonald's point in favor of re-establishing a Halifax harbor commission.

H. L. MacIntosh, the C.C.F. candidate, has also favored re-establishing the port under a local management such as it had 11 years ago. He has coupled with this a proposal for "a national policy for the fullest possible development and utilization of the port the year round."

Dominions Soon To Approve Change In King's Titles

LONDON (CP)—Canada and the other Dominions of the Commonwealth will shortly introduce legislation in their parliaments to approve a change in the King's title, the Earl of Listowel, Secretary of State for India, said Friday.

The earl, who soon will be out of a job, said the change would drop "Emperor of India" from the King's official designation.

At a press conference after first reading in the Commons of the bill to establish the Dominions of India and Pakistan, Lord Listowel said any change in the royal title required the approval of all the countries within the Commonwealth.

This procedure was agreed upon when the status of the Dominions as self-governing territories within the Commonwealth was decided on 20 years ago.

Other sources said the King's present title of "King of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas" also may be revised. It is considered out of step with terms now favored in the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth territories.

'RELATIONS' NOW

This week the Dominions of office, under a United Kingdom government order, became the Commonwealth Relations Office, and Viscount Addison instead of being called the Dominions Secretary, became the Commonwealth Relations Secretary.

The new self-governing territories of India and Pakistan will be formed without any suggestion that the King has authority over them.

The Earl of Listowel said the Prime Ministers of the existing Commonwealth countries would follow the United Kingdom's example in introducing legislation in their parliaments to revise the royal title by dropping "Emperor of India."

Under their independence bill, India and Pakistan will be able to deprive the Governor-General representing the King at their capitals of all his powers when they wish. The Governor-General will be appointed at their own recommendation.

Yugoslavs Object To Woman Working In Ontario Hotel

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A picket parade by 50 Canadian Yugoslavs was planned today against a small downtown hotel which had as an employee a young Yugoslav war widow who was described by Canadian Yugoslavs as a former Chetnik guerrilla—a "pro-Fascist" who has boasted of killing Croatian children like chickens.

George Rosu, president of the All-Slav Alliance, said it was intended to post the picket line, following a meeting of about 150 Canadian Yugoslavs here Friday night. The meeting was attended by representatives of the League of Canadian Croats, Serbs and Slovenes.

The meeting which decided on the picket action was called after publication in a Croat language newspaper of a letter in which the girl who is a target of the picket line said: "I have killed Croatian children like chickens. I've done that and will do it in the future . . . and I'm proud of it."

The Croat newspaper which printed the letter is published in Toronto, and the letter was signed with a nom-de-plume, but investigation disclosed identity of the writer. O. G. Adams, immigration inspector here, said the writer had entered Canada legally.

Lawyer Criticizes Divorce Grounds

VANCOUVER (CP)—Belief that present divorce grounds are "destroying the sanctity and stability of marriage" was voiced by Frank Wilson, Chilliwack lawyer, at the annual meeting of the B.C. Law Society here Friday.

He suggested the society seek an understanding with churches and courts so that if a marriage was found to have ceased to be a marriage "it can be so regarded legally as well as factually."

Oscar Orr, Vancouver city prosecutor, who recently returned from Japanese war trials, spoke of the legal aspect of the trials. "The trials at Tokyo have lasted a year and will probably last another year," he said. There was no "make-believe" about the defence. The trials were as fair as possible.

Health Insurance Planned In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP)—Dr. W. Bramley Moore of Edmonton, registrar of the Alberta Division of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, announced Friday that a voluntary health insurance law for the province will be proposed at the annual convention of the Alberta Medical Association and the C.P.S. here Sept. 10 to 12.

The health insurance proposal, as envisioned by the A.M.A., will offer voluntary prepaid medical care to the public. An organization will be inaugurated to handle the scheme at a low cost.

Dr. Bramley Moore said a similar scheme in British Columbia by the B.C. Medical Services Association costs a family an average of $3.50 a month. That, he added, would be approximately the charge to Albertans.

Believe Mesachie Woods Foreman Tops In Tree Climbing

MESACHIE LAKE—Carlos R. Waldie, who won the British Columbia open tree climbing championship, for the fourth consecutive year at the Duncan Dominion Day Carnival, is "woods" foreman for Hillcrest Lumber Co. Ltd., of Mesachie Lake.

Topping his own last year record by four seconds to climb and descend a 70-foot tree in 24½ seconds, it is believed Mr. Waldie has established a North American record, and inquiries will be made on the matter.

175 Attend Colorful Langford Lake Water Frolic

LANGFORD—A clear night and a calm lake set the stage for the colorful Water Frolic held at Langford Lake Friday night, under direction of R. A. Lawrence, in aid of the Langford Boy Scout Association.

Some 175 people gathered on the lakeshore for the graceful swimming exhibitions and demonstrations.

The canoe-tilting competition provided one of the evening's highlights. There were rowboat races and a display by the Langford Lake fire barge, under direction of Rodney Bayles.

Several members of the Flying "X" swimming team, under direction of Archie McKinnon, gave exhibitions of swimming and demonstrations of the correct methods of swimming. Maj. H. B. Hunter presented prizes to the winners.

More Telephones For Mesachie Lake

MESACHIE LAKE—The 23-line wrapped cable which the B.C. Telephone Co. has strung from Duncan to Honeymoon Bay will service this area, giving an additional 75 telephones to Lake Cowichan, making a total of 200.

Mesachie Lake and Hillcrest Lumber Co. will get about 25, and Honeymoon Bay and Western Forest Industries Ltd. about 50. Both mills will receive a few extra and the remainder will be allotted to residents.

At this time it will be necessary to have five parties to a line. Up to the present the few company telephones of necessity have had to be used by residents. A pay phone will be installed outside the cook-house at Hillcrest, Mesachie and one at Honeymoon Bay.

At Youbou, on the North Shore Road, home of B.C. Forest Products Ltd., there are 1,600 people, including the "Woods" settlements, and they will still have to get along on the few company telephones. It is not feasible at this time, according to B.C. Telephone Co., to instal poles and lines over a nine-mile route from Lake Cowichan.

219 Lose Lives In Accidents Marring U.S. July 4 Holiday

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 200 persons lost their lives in violent accidents Friday as generally fair weather throughout the United States lured millions to Fourth of July holiday events.

Of the 219 violent deaths recorded from 6 p.m. Thursday until today, four resulted from fireworks. Drownings and traffic accidents accounted for most of the fatalities, with 92 persons drowned and 79 killed in highway mishaps. There were 44 persons killed violently from miscellaneous causes, including several in plane crashes.

Athletic Club Holds Sports Day

GANGES HARBOR—The second annual sports day, sponsored by the Salt Spring Island Athletic Club was held in the school grounds at Ganges Harbor. Races for the smaller children were held in the morning and the main events in the afternoon. Harry Nichols was sports convener.

The cup for the aggregate points for ladies, was won by Miss Y. Mout; and for men, by Pat Brenton. The 2½-mile road race was won by Chester Reynolds, the same winner as last year. The cups and prizes were presented by Mrs. Harold Day.

Attractions in the grounds were bingo, run by Douglas Snow and George Anderson; a stall of hot dogs, ice cream, fruit and soft drinks was in charge of Misses Beverly Rogers, Anna St. Denis, Margaret and Lillian Henn and Ted Fowler.

A dance was held in the evening in the Mahon Hall at Ganges, convener was Miss Audrey Malcheski assisted by Mrs. H. Day, Miss Hazel Henn, Miss Norma Wagg and Ted Fowler. Supper was served in the hall with members of the club serving. More than $300 was realized and proceeds, clear of expenses will go towards the funds of the club.

Inquest Today On Logger Death

PARKSVILLE—Thomas F. Greene, 44, was killed instantly at North West Bay while employed as pitman on shovel.

An inquest was held today at the Westwood Hirst Funeral Home in Nanaimo. Company officials say the travel chain had broken on the shovel and Greene was inspecting it unknown to operator. When operator swung the housing Greene's head was crushed between it and shovel trends.

J. W. Greene, father of the deceased, is coming from Hanna, Alberta, for inquest. The mother, Mrs. M. F. Crozier, lives in Calgary. Greene was employed at Powell River and Prince Rupert before coming to North West Bay.

Campbell River Has Successful Carnival

CAMPBELL RIVER—A parade, novelty sports, swimming races and baseball games were held here during the successful Dominion Day carnival staged by the Campbell River Rotary Club at the ball park on the banks of the Campbell River.

Nanaimo defeated Campbell River 5 to 2 in the first game and 9 to 4 in the second. Rotarians launched a barrel from the new British Columbia Power Commission powerhouse and it floated down the river to Zanatta's sawmill.

A smoker was held in the evening in Community Hall. A wrestling bout between John Lawchuck, Campbell River and Sam Nolan, Vancouver, ended in a draw. A dance concluded the day's activities.

Most cost the lives of three persons, William Cameron, 33, his eight-year-old daughter, Ann, and her cousin, Ruth Anne Holmes, two. Another death was caused by fire in Maine.

Highways across the country were crowded with cars and the National Safety Council, estimating 30,000,000 machines would be on the highways over the three-day holiday, predicted 275 persons would be killed in traffic accidents.

In last year's four-day week-end July 4 holiday there were 512 violent deaths, including 231 traffic fatalities, 363 drowned and 118 killed in miscellaneous accidents.

Unionists' Prize For Largest Family

"B.C.'s largest trade union family" will be feted at the United Labor Picnic, Confederation Park, North Burnaby, Aug. 3. The contest is open to all trade unionists in B.C.; and the applicant judged to have the largest family will be brought to the picnic at the committee's expense. Rules of the contest are that the applicant must be a member in good standing of a bona fide trade union and the members of the family shall include the largest living group directly related to the applicant—wife or husband, sisters, brothers, sons, daughters, parents or grandparents).

The other highlight event of the day will be a contest to crown "Miss B.C. Industry."

Dive Causes Death

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Peter Sherston, 35-year-old Bethany, Ont., school teacher who fractured his neck when he dove into a pool at that village 10 days ago, died in the hospital here Friday night. Burial will be at Two Hills, Alta.

The Department of Veterans' Affairs dental clinic department treated 558 patients during June, including 247 fillings and 118 extractions, Dr. J. D. Johnson, dental surgeon in charge of the Victoria-Veterans' Hospital, reports.

'Protects' Tenants

VANCOUVER (CP)—The rent-fixing procedure of Housing Enterprises Ltd. is for the protection of its tenants, William L. Inglis, district manager of the company, said Friday. His statement followed complaints to City Council in New Westminster that Housing Enterprises required prospective tenants to be earning $225 monthly.

Living Costs Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's cost-of-living index, still rising under the impetus of removed controls, jumped another 1.8 points during May to 134.9 on June 2, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

At June 2 the index, computed on the base 1935-39 equals 100, was 7.9 points higher than at Jan. 1 and 11.3 points above its level at the beginning of June last year. Increase in the index since August, 1939, was 33.8 per cent.

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA—

In the past, British Columbia has averaged about sixteen hundred forest fires a year, with a resultant loss in standing forests, felled timber, equipment, buildings, and other values. Our bill for these losses, plus the cost of fighting forest fires, has amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. The easiest fire to fight is the one that is never started. When in the woods, BE CAREFUL WITH FIRE! PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

PLAIN TALK

BOTH MR. TRUMAN FOR GREAT BRITAIN

Mr. Truman for the United States have told the government of the Soviet Union—if not categorically, by inference that is unmistakable—that Mr. Molotov's refusal to collaborate in the American economic self-help plan for Europe may be fraught with the gravest of consequences. The British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs tells the men of Moscow that "you can carry provocation too far... that there comes a moment when we say 'we have had enough,'" so "I say to my friends: 'Don't provoke the situation,'" because "I love the Russian people."

The President of the United States, without specifically mentioning the Soviet Union, in his speech at Charlottesville yesterday described as "folly" the refusal of any European country to take part in a co-operative plan for the continent's economic recovery. But there was no mistaking whom the chief executive meant when he deplored "organized mistrust" which had led and was leading the world's people "away from peace and unity," while the appeal for an end to "propaganda attacks upon other nations" was a cap that would snugly fit the editorial heads of Izvestia and Pravda.

Whether the Soviet Union will accept the Anglo-French invitation to join with a score of other European nations in Paris next Saturday to begin new discussions on the "Marshall Plan" is highly problematical. Until the men in charge at the Kremlin have issued their detailed reasons—apart from the familiar specious ones—why Mr. Molotov and his colleagues were so unco-operative on this latest occasion it would perhaps be wise to leave the matter in the conjectural realm.

SPAIN'S FAKE PLEBISCITE

TOMORROW THE PEOPLE OF SPAIN will go to the polls for the first time in eleven years. The ballot paper on which they will mark their cross will ask them to answer only one question. It will say: "Do you ratify with your vote the bill on the Law of Succession to the post of Chief of State approved by the Spanish Cortes June 7, 1947?"

This Law of Succession, framed by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's appointees, confirms the present dictator as Chief of State, defines Spain as a "Catholic Kingdom" and provides machinery to choose the Generalissimo's next in line—from among direct or collateral branches of the Spanish Royal Family in the event of his death, incapacitation or retirement. It also permits the present dictator, moreover, to choose his own successor during his lifetime, or leaves the choice to his appointees after his death.

This extraordinary election procedure "graciously" permits every adult Spaniard with "full political right" to mark "yes" or "no" on his ballot. But it should be noted that approximately 1,750,000 Republican sympathizers will be barred from the use of the ballot altogether because "courts of political responsibility" have deprived them of their basic rights. Under this arrangement, therefore, it is not likely that many who go to the polls will feel inclined to register their objection to the whole business by voting "no." For opposition to the regime of Generalissimo Franco is still regarded as a crime; the inference thus would seem to be plain.

For the record, it is interesting to recall that the people of Spain last went to the polls on February 16, 1936, when the Popular Front Party rolled up a majority of 703,000 votes out of a total of 9,276,000 cast. Less than six months afterward, however, Franco staged the revolt, with the support of the army, against the Republic. Almost two years later—after the civil war—Generalissimo Francisco Franco proclaimed himself Chief of State. This is his position at the present time; nor is it likely that it will be substantially changed after the government-controlled balloting has been completed on Sunday.

THE HAND THAT ROCKS...

IF CANADIAN WOMEN DO NOT AP- predate their responsibilities as citizens as well as home-makers, it is no fault of members of their sex who have risen to posts of distinction in public life. Last week in Victoria and this week in Ottawa, elected representatives have told them frankly that they must post themselves on events of the day and do more than pass pious resolutions if they wish to give effective action to the ideals to which they subscribe.

It is entirely fitting that these things should be said by women to women. Not that we think apathy is a peculiar prerogative of what was once called the "weaker sex" in matters relative to public affairs. But those of their number who hold parliamentary and other office are not satisfied with the distaff side. It is significant that members of the three major Canadian parties are represented among the spokesmen—or spokeswoman—who have called for a high degree of political literacy among their sisters. And it is important to note the words used by one of them, that "we shouldn't ask for anything because we're women, but should insist on things because we're people."

In this country and in many others, woman has won her fight for recognition in the political field. With it she has automatically assumed responsibilities that can be discharged only as she acquaints herself with the affairs of the community, the nation and the globe. And since the hand that rocks the cradle yields such influence in the affairs of the world, the admonition made by women parliamentarians should not go unheeded when the needs of the times demand clear thinking.

HOSPITALITY IS REPAID

THE POSITION IN WHICH BRITAIN now finds herself as the world's leading refuge for the afflicted people of Europe is not a new one for the rugged North Sea island. History records a long list of similar occasions when the doors of England have stood open to the politically and economically oppressed peoples of the continent. And the footnote which may be written to history is that in many cases the country which extended the helping hand has been repaid in "good measure by the subsequent contribution which the immigrants have made to British achievement."

Flemish weavers and dyers who found a new home in England at the time of Edward III, and even before, helped to lay the basis for an industry that has been a British mainstay through the years. The Huguenots, who sought sanctuary from religious persecution in France, in their turn added to Britain's importation of culture and crafts. Continental residents, from simple workmen to deposed royalty, came to know Britain as a place where refuge could be had, and where the word "freedom" meant just that.

Victims of Nazi persecution crossed the North Sea during the 1930's, as thousands before them had done during the ages. And today Britain is still holding open her doors, while from the continent pour the "displaced persons," the homeless, whose lives have been wrecked by the war, but who need only security and a chance in life to resume their trades and professions—and repay the country that gave them new life and hope. Already reports tell of "craft colonies" which are being established, where the newcomers are making their contribution to British industry—as did the Flemish weavers 600 years before them—in the form of new processes, new products and new wealth.

OAK BAY'S MUNICIPAL HALL

RESIDENTS OF OAK BAY, WHO TWICE within a week recently journeyed to the municipal hall to cast votes on items of vital interest, will agree with the statement of municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave, that the present building is inadequate. For one of the richest districts in the province, the edifice at the corner of Oak Bay Avenue and Hampshire Road is scarcely an object of pride. Admittedly the structure has more than served its term of usefulness.

It would be short-sighted, however, to replace it with a more adequate and imposing building on the present site. The two questions on which ratepayers voted last month surely indicate the desirability of co-ordinating the administration of that municipality with those of surrounding districts in Greater Victoria. On the transportation and school building questions, group joint action was necessary. The method by which it was achieved in the latter instance revealed clearly the cumbersome of the present arrangement. Votes were held on three separate days to determine one thing. When Greater Victoria moves, it should be in a position to act in a less disjointed manner. When amalgamation has been achieved, the more direct course will be possible.

Progressive people in this community will join Oak Bay in hoping for a new municipal hall—but not one which preserves the division of Greater Victoria. Certainly Oak Bay is entitled to a better building—one in which it co-ordinates services with those of other entities in the larger area as a part of the unification which has already begun and which will continue.

SONGSTER IN WORK CLOTHES

THE SMALL BROWN BIRD JUST CAME to sing. Partly hidden in the bushy branches of the jack pine, he made no pretensions to dress. His simple brown coat, grey vest and black tie were inconspicuous. Yet, though unassuming, he was proud of his voice. There was a sturdy assurance to his aim—a stance that seemed to proclaim his appreciation of his instrument. He could have passed for a sparrow—until he opened his beak.

But once his song reached the air, once the pure melody, the strong true notes and the graceful trills flowed forth, he became an artist. Here was a Caruso, sprung from humble parentage, unadorned by the gay raiment his domesticated cousins flaunt so proudly from their cages. Here was genius that caught the human spirit, lifted it in the rising cadence of a prolonged and modulated call, and infected listeners with the joy of living that seemed personified in his free notes. He seemed to acknowledge the mute admiration of the woodlands as his tremolo drifted into silence. Head up, he again poured forth the treasure of song, bobbed modestly, and flitted to a distant branch. His hymn of praise came more faintly, was lost in the distance. But on the receptive ear it left its record, something of transparent loveliness to remember when flagging spirits need inspiration.

They Find a Haven

U.K. Information Office

DARK-HAIRED Dr. Mala Zirk, 25-year-old Estonian, stepped smiling down the gangplank at Tilbury Docks. Clutching a tattered suitcase, she gazed hopefully at the English skies above, and unbuttoned her shabby coat in the May sunshine. Onto the dock behind her trooped three more chattering girls, Hilja, Velta and Irene, refugees from the Baltic States, taking their first look at Britain.

The party of 84 Baltic women that had just landed clambered into waiting buses. They were among the 100,000 "other displaced" workers from the British zone of Germany—men and women who, after eight long years of war and wandering, are getting a chance to replant their roots in peaceful, fertile soil. They will join the 450,000 refugees from Nazism already in Britain.

ALTOGETHER 3,000 "displaced persons" from the Continent have arrived in Britain during the past month. As the doors of Britain swing open to these refugees, years of anguish and misery are shut behind. Before, they were a people driven to and fro by one invading army after another, forced to work as slaves, haunted by the shootings and deportations they had seen, living on starvation diet.

Dr. Mala Zirk has come to help get ready hostels for the 100,000 other displaced workers. Many of the little party that landed with her—women with threadbare clothes and broken shoes, carrying their precious belongings in cardboard boxes and cloth bundles—have university degrees and professional qualifications.

ONE IS A PLAYWRIGHT, another a domestic science teacher, a third a soprano. They are making do as cooks and clerks, as canteen hands and waitresses. They are sharing a second-floor dormitory at Marylebone Institution in London. In a few years they will go back to their professions. Right now it is enough to count on three good meals a day, a warm bed at night, regular working hours.

From now on, refugees will arrive in Britain at the rate of 1,000 a week. They are first allocated to one of four receiving stations at Hull, Market Harborough, Havant and London. Then they are moved to camps or hostels, where the men pay $6 a week for board and lodging, the women $5. This buys them two meals a day and three on Sundays. Factory canteens supply them a hot lunch at very little cost.

SPECIAL OFFICERS are visiting German camps to answer any questions and tell about conditions in Britain. Volunteers are then interviewed, medically examined and given their travel permits. Britain pays the journey, finds free accommodation on arrival with free meals until each refugee has a job.

Every displaced worker's family follows him to Britain as soon as it can be arranged. As far as possible, arrangements are made for husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, to travel together. Rapid postal service ensures that the new arrival in Britain can contact his relatives quickly and even send parcels.

Once in Britain, these thousands of refugees are absorbed into the country's life on an equal footing with other workers. They are paid the same wages and employed under exactly the same conditions as the workers of Britain.

BRITAIN IS TAKING in the refugees for an initial period of 12 months, under the new labor scheme. They will apply their skills to a vast range of technical and manual jobs, in factories and offices where specialized knowledge is needed or where local labor is short.

Displaced workers flowing across the English Channel today are finding many others like themselves, once persecuted and homeless. Only recently, Britain offered the rights and privileges of full citizenship to 1,400 orphan children, victims of Nazi aggression. They may make Britain their permanent home right away, without waiting until they are 21.

FIGURES SHOW that more people today want to become British citizens than at any time before. More than 25,000 alien refugees are now filing for citizenship—Austrian, Italian, Czech, Russian, Hungarian, French, Polish, Rumanian, Dutch, Spanish and countless others.

During the rise of Nazism, Britain harbored 148,000 resident aliens. Today their numbers have multiplied to 450,000, of whom many are Jews. This means that, counting the 100,000 now on their way, there will soon be well over half a million refugees in Britain.

Most of these refugees have settled in large towns like London, Leeds and Manchester. The government has boosted many of them up the ladder by opening "trading estates" in suitable areas, with further filips in the form of capital grants up to 50 per cent, reduced rents and lower rates.

IN RETURN for these fresh opportunities, the refugees have poured their talents into the nation's production machine. They are developing "craft colonies" for the specialized manufacture of new processes in paints, plastics, knitted wear, fancy leather goods, chemicals, soft furnishings, artificial flowers and a host of other goods.

New arrivals are warned that Britain is still a land of scarcities, beset with food, fuel and clothing difficulties. It is also a very crowded country, averaging 500 persons per square mile compared with 44 in America, 22 in Russia. But Britain has never closed her doors to refugees.

Difficulties Facing French Production

By SAMMY BERACHA

STARTING from almost a dead stop at the time of the liberation, French industry has gradually approached its 1938 level of activity. But, for several months now it has been making a desperate effort to attain that level, without quite succeeding. And yet, that year 1938, taken as a basis, was far from a prosperous one. It reached barely four-fifths of the output of 1929, a year that was generally used as a basis of comparison before the war.

But, before we discuss the elements which are hampering French recovery, let us see what stages the different branches of industry have reached.

Lethargic on the eve of liberation, French industry stopped almost completely during the weeks when the country was the theatre of the Liberation fighting. Transportation routes were completely disrupted as a result of bombing and sabotage. The coal mines were deserted. In the weeks following liberation, the first problem to be solved was thus that of communications. It was necessary to re-establish the veins and arteries of the numbed body to which France was likened at the time. She was breathing only very slowly. Paris, her heart, beat but feebly. The coal mines were awaiting pit props so that they could resume their normal activity, in the meantime regrouping their scattered manpower and repairing, as far as possible, equipment which had been outworn before the war and overworked and carelessly handled during the occupation years.

COMMUNICATIONS

At that time, communications were the chief concern. In this connection it should be said that the French railway authorities gave proof of the country's vitality; they accomplished the most remarkable tour of force of French postwar economy by putting the whole railway system back into operation in just a year's time. At present, in spite of the shortage of rolling stock, careful use of the latter makes it possible to handle all industrial transportation almost without a hitch.

The first advance in production after the departure of the Germans was undoubtedly due to the recovery of transportation. However, sixteen months after the liberation, in December, 1945, the general index of industrial production, estimated by the Statistical Service of the Ministry of Industrial Production, barely reached 55, taking 1938-100 as the basis. The slow recovery of French economy can be judged by the fact that this index was only 81 a year later, in December, 1946. However, with the putting into operation of the Monnet Plan, the first quarter of this year saw it rise to 88.

DIFFICULTIES

This result, which does not look very impressive, can only be accurately gauged in the light of the difficulties of all kinds that had to be overcome, difficulties that we shall discuss later on.

What should be pointed out at once is that the effort has not been uniform in all branches of production. Instinctively, the government tended to favor the "key products," and consequently to orient itself in the direction that the Monnet Plan was later to indicate. After transportation, the production of coal and electricity showed the most notable results from this government concern. The former recently attained 115 percent of its 1938 figure, or more than 1,000,000 tons a week, the production of electricity last March attaining the remarkable figure of 144 percent of its 1938 level, or 2,221,300 kwh. for the month. Iron-smelting is now the subject of special attention.

If we lay great stress on this subject, it is because it casts so much light on the progress and the aim of French economy. It is a question above all of producing to satisfy the needs of industry itself. The consumer will come later. Machinery first! Prosperity and well-being will follow as the natural result. Such is the creed of the Monnet Plan. But for machines and equipment steel products are essential.

At the time of writing, it is probable that steel production will have reached or perhaps even exceeded its 1938 level. This steel will be partly transformed into re-equipment and reconstruction goods and partly into exportable products, such as automobiles. The market, properly speaking the consumer market, will get very little. For France, to support her production effort, must import raw materials and machines and also pay for deliveries from abroad as far as possible with French exports. The saving of foreign exchange and the endeavour to balance the budget constitute the second commandment of the French plan.

In any case, if the year 1946 can be looked upon as the year of mining effort, 1947 will be the year of iron-smelting. Let us not jump to the conclusion that the latter will accomplish miracles. It is already suffering from the difficulties which handicap all production—the shortage of coal and scarcity of man-power both skilled and unskilled.

As for coal, as much is being produced from the French mines as before the war, but the amount of imported coal is far less than that received in 1938. France's chief supplier, England, which used to deliver between eight and nine million tons a year, is short of coal herself.

GERMAN COAL

As for the second supplier, Germany, which formerly provided about 7,000,000 tons, it is the subject of political problems that necessitate the postponement of Ruhr coal allocation for the time being. It is true that France signed a tripartite agreement at Moscow assuring her a share of this coal proportionate to the rate of extraction. The fact remains that this arrangement will not bear fruit until the end of the year. It will then be possible for France to look forward to a new spurt in her industrial activity. In the meantime, she will have to do her best to maintain present industrial production and be satisfied with that.

Thus she will have time to obtain the workers she needs. She is recruiting them in Italy and North Africa. But in the case of the mines, there is not much time to spare, for the German prisoners of war will soon be leaving. They account for 20 percent of coal production, or more than 200,000 tons a week. So the chief problem at the moment is not so much a matter of increasing production as of keeping it at its present level, relatively low though it is.

In fact, since France has only 80 percent of the coal she needs, there is no prospect of bringing her industrial production up to 100 percent this year.

Friendship—'The Heart Dances'

From Rev. Robert D. McKeehan's "Life's Golden Hour."

FRIENDSHIP IS a mystery. It is a miracle. No science can create it. No money can buy it. No art can explain it. No army can defend it or put it to flight. It is wordless. It is ineffable. Nevertheless, to those who are attuned to it and share its mystic secret, it is more vital and vivid and eloquent than anything else in the world. Though wordless, it has its own deep speech of warmth and wonder. Though ineffable it can be felt, even sensed, from afar, and it creates its own secret and sacramental signs uttering the unutterable.

It is a mystery. It is a miracle. It makes a weak man strong—stronger than oak or granite. And it makes a strong man weak—weaker than a little child and more pliable than sun-kissed wax. Its source is older than the hills, hidden in the heart of the eternal Father—and yet it is newer than the newest blossom in a summer garden.

It transforms weights into wings and causes even tired eyes to become mirrors reflecting the soul. It keeps only what it can give and it sings only as it shares. Its imitations are many and varied, but at best, they are inferior to perfect friendship as a faded picture to a fond and faithful presence.

It is a mystery. It is a miracle. It gives life its finest fragrance and loving loyalty its most adequate reward. It is deeper than logic and explains what pure reason can never understand. It remembers when everyone forgets.

It gives comfort when every-

Exploring Wilds

Exchange

Plans are now well advanced for a schoolboy expedition which is leaving Britain in July for holiday explorations in the wilds of Newfoundland. This marks the postwar revival of the work of the Public Schools Exploring Society which, from 1932 until the outbreak of hostilities, sent out eight such parties. This year's expedition will last six weeks and have its headquarters at a base camp in the wilds about 200 miles from St. John's.

thing in life seems to have failed. Like the river Lethe, its sweet waters "cleanse the soul of all dark memories," and by its divine magic even the grey mists of sorrow and pain are made to hold a rainbow of imperishable hope. Because of it the dull, prosaic streets become "elf-haunted gardens," and every common bush is aflame with God, while the heart dances to the music of the spheres.

Like the stars, it seems to hang upon nothing. But, again, like the celestial bodies, it can neither be changed nor spoiled by anything outside its own intimate orbit.

Well, what about this high and beautiful, intimate and inspiring sacrament called friendship? Assuming that we know something of its mystery and meaning, what shall we do with it? How are we to deal with the priceless possession which we have in an experience of perfect friendship? I think we must do five things. We must cultivate it. We must consecrate it. We must appreciate it. We must keep it pure and constant. And we must guard and protect it.

Global Survey

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

RUSSIA'S REFUSAL TO CO-operate with the western democracies in the economic rehabilitation of Europe will be recorded as one of the great landmarks of history.

It has produced a situation whose development is fascinating to watch—fearsomely so, like a struggle to keep an angrily flooded Mississippi from breaking its banks. Indeed, that is precisely the position which has been created in Europe where western democracy now is responding to the call to build a dike against the red flood of Communism advancing across the continent, from the east.

Will there be enough able and willing hands to make the dike hold? One can say only that it will be an epic struggle.

President Truman, speaking yesterday from the porch of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home at Charlottesville, Va., characterized as folly the refusal of any European nation to take part in a co-operative plan for economic rehabilitation of the continent. True, but Russia's turned-down thumbs are going to act as a mighty deterrent to small countries lying within Moscow's sphere of influence.

Still, the other two great powers of Europe, Britain and France, have wasted no time in moving to implement State Secretary Marshall's program for economic recovery. They have invited 22 countries to participate—all the sizeable countries excepting Russia, which already had rejected the plan, and Spain, whose Generalissimo, Franco, is regarded as the bad lad of Europe politically.

It is important to note that the door was left open for Russia to come in, and she was urged to change her mind. It also is significant that the principal countries in the Soviet bloc were invited.

Among the first to accept were Greece, Turkey, Denmark and The Netherlands—all outside Russia's domination. Coincidentally there came an undefined but striking reaction from the Soviet zone.

Czechoslovakia—most independent country in the Slavic bloc—let it be known that its Communist premier, Klement Gottwald, and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk, were leaving for consultation with Moscow. Only three days earlier—before the collapse of the Paris conference—a special Czechoslovak commission which had studied the Marshall program, recommended that Czechoslovakia co-operate.

Of course, it takes no mind reader to know what is worrying little Czechoslovakia, which sits right under the guns of Moscow. Czechoslovakia's troubles also will be the troubles of other Russian satellites which would like to participate in the rehabilitation program and get the benefits, but will have to take orders from the boss—or else! For example, Poland which is badly in need of economic assistance, already had notified Washington of adherence to the Marshall project before Russia broke up the Paris conference.

WHO WON IT?

S. P. Tyler in the Toronto Saturday Night

Referring to the recent demonstrations in Germany, a commentator suggests that the Germans "should be reminded who lost the war." This suggestion might arouse more enthusiastic support if someone could remember off-hand who won it.

WOMEN CAN'T FACE IT

Charles Cole in BBC News

"Making caricatures of women is particularly dangerous. That's why I will never do it if I can avoid it. Once I drew a frank caricature of quite a famous man, and his wife thought it so very funny that she pealed with laughter until he became really annoyed. He whispered, 'Do one of her—I did, and the lady has never spoken to me since.'"

LAST CHANCE

Washington Post

Great encouragement to European effort has been given by the White House. The President has set up three committees to assess our resources and our potentialities of aid. One of the committees is the bipartisan body that Senator Vandenberg suggested. It is full of good names, showing that in all branches of American life there are men of goodwill who see the advantage to everybody of this joint assault on European deterioration. It is no exaggeration to say that this may be Europe's last chance.

R.C.A.F.'s Exclusive Para-Rescue Squad Can Deliver Baby Or Succor Crash Victims On Lonely Mountain

Now undergoing intensive training in the heart of the Canadian Rockies are 21 members of the R.C.A.F.'s most "exclusive" course—that given by the Para-Rescue School at Henry House field, nine miles from Jasper, Alta. Students of this unique school are hand-picked men from R.C.A.F. stations across Canada, chosen for their bush experience, fitness, mental alertness, and ability to cope with situations that may range from succoring victims of an aircraft crash on a mountain top to delivering a baby in a region quickly accessible only by parachute. The men will eventually join the air force's jump rescue teams, which form part of Canada's elaborate search and rescue organization, co-ordinated by the R.C.A.F.

Competition for the course, which includes practice jumps into terrain chosen for its ruggedness, in addition to comprehensive lectures and instructions in subjects such as bush lore and first aid, was keen, and the men now taking training all made application nearly a year ago.

The school operates from a small natural airfield in a valley surrounded by towering mountains, and has for its officer commanding a veteran of Para-Rescue work, F.O. C. W. Weir of Edmonton. Instructing the trainees are Sgt. Laurence Paulson, Edmonton; Sgt. W. J. J. Rivet, Vimy, Alta.; Cpl. G. E. Bartlett, Fox Mead, Ont.; Sgt. A. M. Davies, Halifax, and Dr. W. E. Henderson, Owen Sound, Ont.

Graduates of the course must be able to administer more than basic first-aid and under Dr. Henderson they are given more than 100 hours instruction in looking after injured persons. Members of the Para-Rescue teams may in many cases be called upon to give badly-injured persons medical care for several weeks, before they are able to return them to civilization and the care of a medical practitioner. If necessary the jumpers will be able to deliver a baby, so comprehensive is their medical instruction. While the purpose of Para-Rescue is primarily that of aiding and rescuing aircraft crash victims, they may be called upon to render aid to the injured in any of the inaccessible parts of Canada.

SPOT LANDINGS

The men learn the difficult art of controlled parachute jumping, and must be able to make nearly perfect spot landings. The students make 10 jumps before they qualify for the Para-Rescue heavily timbered country and the remainder into mountainous terrain. To obtain accuracy in these jumps the aircraft makes a preliminary run into the wind over the target area and on passing over the top of the target at a height of 1,500 feet the jump master releases a small parachute from the plane. Known as a drift chute, this enables the jump master to estimate wind drift over the target. The aircraft makes a second run into the wind and the jump master estimates the distance traveled downwind by the drift chute. At an equivalent distance upwind, beyond the target, the signal is given and out go the jumpers. Ability to land close to the target or at a selected spot by precision jumping is important, for in addition to possible danger to the jumper, who might land in water or on a steep mountain slope through an uncontrolled jump, a miss of a half mile from a crashed aircraft might entail hours of searching on the ground before locating it, if in heavily timbered, rugged country. The fully equipped Para-Rescue man jumps with approximately 60 pounds of clothing and gear, which further complicates his task.

Mountain climbing to the Para-Rescue men means more than just scrambling up a hill; and the involved techniques of snow, ice and rock work. Each member of the course, besides learning normal methods of climbing, is taught how to evacuate injured persons from mountains and cliffs, through bush and heavily wooded country, and across streams and rivers. They are taught to improvise stretchers from whatever materials may be available, and the 100-foot length of nylon rope which forms part of the individual equipment comes in for a surprising number of uses.

The jumpers learn how to erect bush shelters, using boughs and bark, and how to build a tent from the parachute with which he descended. Further secrets of axemanship come in when the trainee is shown how to make a 14-foot log raft without benefit of rope or nails—a raft that will safely support four men and their equipment. Three men are able to construct the raft in three hours.

Equipment used by the men is the best obtainable, and typical of their gear are the special tinted glasses worn as protection against glare and snow-blindness. The glasses can be hammered against a rock without danger of being broken or even marked. The "safety suits" worn combine lightness with maximum protection. Made of heavy duck, the suits are reinforced by straps passing under the arch of the foot and up the sides of the leg. The jumper's head and face are protected by a helmet, similar to that worn by a rugby player, with a strong steel wire-grid face mask, a protection against injuries from snags and tree tops when jumping into wooded country.

Five Schools At $1,254,075 Cost To Be Started By Spring Of 1948

Five projects of the school building program should be in the construction stage by the spring of 1948 as a result of action taken by the Greater Victoria School Board at a special meeting Friday evening, when architects were instructed to proceed with working drawings and specifications.

S. P. Birley of Birley, Wade and Stockill, assured the board members that his firm could get started on three of the projects by the end of this month, and that it would take several months to get all the specifications drawn up.

Five schools of the first group, with their estimated cost as follows: Vocational-technical building, $202,000; Topaz Junior High School, $666,000; additions to Esquimalt High School, $287,100; View Royal elementary school, $65,275; and Strawberry Vale elementary school, $33,700. The total cost is $1,254,075, half of which will be paid by the provincial government.

Chairman Austin I. Curtis, in opening the three-hour discussion stressed that the entire 14-point program is urgent, but the school board cannot proceed with everything at once. In the by-laws passed by the ratepayers and approved by the province, it is to be a five-year program, and the provincial government must be notified by November of this year how much money is needed for 1948 building.

The problem of Central Junior High School, which was condemned as a fire hazard by Fire Chief Joseph Raymond more than a year ago, came up for considerable discussion, as board members tried to evaluate whether it was more important to relieve overcrowded conditions in all districts or eliminate a potential danger.

Trustee M. P. Paine pointed out that the rebuilding of Central Junior High as a first item would complicate the overcrowding problem, as the children now attending that school would have to be accommodated elsewhere during its reconstruction, whereas if some of the new schools such as Topaz Avenue Junior High were built first there would be a place in which to put them.

In a report submitted to the board, J. F. K. English, municipal inspector of schools, stated that the building of Topaz Junior High School would do more to relieve overcrowding than any other single building, as it would relieve congestion in six elementary schools and Mount View High School. He also stated in discussion that the building of the vocational-technical units at Victoria High School would eliminate the use of the wooden workshops at Central Junior High and wipe out one of the worst fire hazards there.

In order to obtain the federal grants the vocational unit must be started before the end of March, 1948, he reported, and completed by the end of March, 1949.

The board canvassed the material situation with the architects attending the meeting as to whether there would be a better chance of getting several of the smaller projects completed earlier than some of the larger ones. Mr. Birley explained that large contractors would not be likely to tender on the smaller jobs, and they were in a better position to obtain some of the scarcer building materials.

LOOKS FOR IMPROVEMENT

He was optimistic, however, that the material situation would improve during the next 12 months, stressing that as the building boom was falling off production is stepping up. "The first 12 months of our program will prove your most difficult," he told the trustees, "I would suggest you decide which schools are most essential and proceed with them, prepared to accept the headaches which will inevitably come before they are completed."

Which buildings will come in the second group to be built will not be decided definitely by the board until some tenders have been called on the first five and it is seen how work progresses with specifications, and how the situation may change.

Trustee A. Edmunds was concerned about children of Cadboro Bay and View Royal who now attend school by bus, feeling that such transportation should be eliminated as quickly as possible. He particularly objected to leaving the Cadboro Bay School in one of the later groups to be constructed.

Mr. English, supported by John Gough, municipal inspector of schools, explained that actually the school population of Cadboro Bay had dropped by four pupils this year and it cost only $1,000 a year for bus transportation. However, they stated, the school would undoubtedly be needed within the five-year period.

The board also decided to go ahead with the purchase of all sites on which they now hold options, and the municipal councils will be asked to advance the money for the purchase prices. In the case of part of the site needed for the Oak Bay Junior High School, the solicitors were instructed to go ahead with expropriation proceedings and have the price arbitrated, as the owner is asking too high a price in the opinion of the board members.

No Check-off Dues For School Teachers

Greater Victoria teachers were unsuccessful Friday evening in obtaining check-off of professional dues, as the Greater Victoria School Board unanimously refused to grant the request.

The teachers suggested that the year's dues be subtracted from the November pay cheques each year, and stated they would supply the secretary with a full list of all dues to be deducted.

T. L. Christie, secretary-treasurer, assured board members the task would entail very little additional work, stressing that the federal income tax department insisted on deductions at the source which did cause a lot of extra work.

Trustee R. H. Green queried if all teachers were in the federation, and Chairman Austin I. Curtis said that all but three teachers in the Greater Victoria district were now members.

Trustee A. Edmunds felt that the whole question should be held in abeyance until after the next session of the legislature, because he thought similar legislation to the Hartley-Taft bill in the United States might be passed, which would outlaw check-off.

Trustee M. P. Paine stated bluntly, "We objected to this principle before. I don't feel inclined to co-operate with the teachers in this. They are a law unto themselves. Let them do their own collecting." He moved the resolution to refuse the request which carried unanimously.

Open 7 Playgrounds For Children In Saanich Monday

Monday is the day when seven supervised playgrounds will be officially opened by the Saanich Recreation Council, Chief Supervisor A. Murphy and assistants. A fine program has been mapped for the playgrounds during the next six weeks of summer, including swimming, dancing, tumbling, softball, boxing, woodcraft, nature hikes, clay modeling and crepe-paper weaving.

The council has issued an appeal to parents in the Craigflower School district to form their own committee without delay. Without such a committee it would be impossible to have a supervised playground in the district, it was stressed.

Following are the playgrounds to open Monday:

Playfair Park Playground. Opening at 2 by Councillor Thomas Alexander, followed by registration of children. Playground hours are 10.30 to 12 and 1.30 to 4 five days a week. Supervisor is Miss Sheila Beckwith.

Gorge Park Playground. Opening at 2. Big sports day planned for children. Hours for use of the playground will be from 11 to 4. Mrs. F. Farrow is the supervisor.

Rainbow Playground. Official opening with a fancy dress parade at 7.30 in the evening by Councillor E. P. Cummins and Sgt. Eric Elwell of the Saanich Police. Registration starts at 10 in the morning. Lemonade and cookies will be served. Playground hours are 10 to 4. Supervisor is Miss Betty Boulet.

Strawberry Vale Community Hall Playground. Opening at 1 by Councillor Cummins, children being registered starting at 10 in the morning. Ice cream will be served. Miss Evelyn Usher is the supervisor. Hours are 10 to 3.

Strawberry Vale School Playground. Registration of children at 10. Councillor Cummins will officially open the playground at 2. Games have been arranged. Tea will be served. There will also be hot dogs, ice cream and home-cooking booth will be in operation. Hours 10 to 4. Miss Jessie Lahmer is supervisor.

Tolmie Park Playground. Opening at 1.30 by Councillor George Rudd. Ice cream and games for children. Hours are 10 to 12 and 1.30 to 3.30. Supervisor is Mrs. M. Hamilton.

Rudd Park Playground. Opening at 2.30. Tea will be served and there will be games for children. Miss P. Henson is supervisor. Registration opens at 10.

Council members were not able to say whether Craigflower School Playground will be able to open with the others due to the lack of a parents' committee up to today. However, it is hoped mothers and fathers in that area will take fast action so that this playground can be officially opened with the others.

Registration pamphlets will be issued to all children who wish to attend supervised playgrounds in Saanich. Parents are asked to sign them and return them to the supervisors.

School Board Briefs

After considerable discussion the Greater Victoria School Board Friday evening, decided to leave the question of whether or not school classrooms should be used during summer months for sectarian classes, to a special committee. The question came up when Mrs. Frances Mallek, on behalf of the Temple Emanuel applied for use of two classrooms during July and August. Several board members felt it might interfere with maintenance and repair work, while others thought it might open the way for many sects to apply for similar privileges.

Esquimalt Supervised Playground Council was granted use of tumbling mats and other sports equipment in Esquimalt schools for their summer playground activities, subject to the approval of the school principals as to which equipment should be loaned.

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association was granted permission to hold a fall convention of all teachers on Vancouver Island at Victoria High School Oct. 24 and 25. The teachers asked for Oct. 23 and 24, which would mean closing the schools for two days, but both the Department of Education and the school board recommended the convention be on a Friday and Saturday instead.

Billet Remanded

Trial of Clarence Arthur Billett alleging theft of a camera over the value of $25, the property of Mrs. W. C. Bailey, Seattle, was remanded in city police court Friday until July 8, owing to the fact the American woman could not be on hand.

He earlier elected trial before Magistrate H. C. Hall and today entered a plea of not guilty.

On the charge of having an unregistered pistol in his possession, Billett pleaded guilty.

Accused asked for a postponement in regard to explaining his side of the pistol charge until the other case was heard, noting that the gun had a relation to that matter.

Billett is awaiting trial for possession of a car alleged to have been stolen. He was committed at Nanaimo police court in June.

Miss Helen Hill, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex G. Hill, 1217 Hewlett Place, left Victoria Thursday en route to Montreal, where she will visit her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Brooks. Later Miss Hill will visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richards in Washington, D.C., and spend some time in New York City and New Orleans before returning to the Pacific coast via Los Angeles, where she will be the guests of other cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Maloney. She expects to be away from the city about two months.

Aged Women's Home Operates At Loss

An increase of 66.7 per cent in operating expenses in the past five years has caused the Aged and Infirm Women's Home to operate with a financial loss each month, it was announced at the regular meeting of the committee held at the Home.

Mrs. A. D. Whittier, the president, was in the chair and plans were made for a garden tea to be held at the Home on August 20.

Committee for the month is Mrs. G. A. Lister, convener, Mrs. E. Heddie and Mrs. R. J. Jameson.

Spanish Mantilla, Period Gown, Worn By Bride Thursday

An exquisite Spanish lace mantilla added an old-world touch to the white satin period gown worn by Miss Dorathea "Donna" Maxwell, daughter of M. J. Maxwell, 1498 Derby Road, and the late Mrs. Maxwell, when she became the bride of George Allan Amos, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Amos, East Saanich Road, Thursday evening.

Masses of mauve, pink and white blossoms decorated Metropolitan United Church for the nuptial service read by Rev. A. E. Whitehouse. Miss Jean Dumerton sang "Through the Years," and E. Holloway presided at the organ.

Pastel pink rosebuds showered from a white prayer book carried by the bride, given in marriage by her father. A single strand of pearls and pearl earrings were the sole jewelry worn with the bridal gown, fashioned with pink rosebuds caught in lace-frilled insets on either side of the skirt front, fitted bodice, off-the-shoulder neckline, and long sleeves, pointed over the wrists.

Chartreuse voile designed on period lines, the bouffant skirt caught with four pale pink roses, was worn by Miss Joyce Maxwell, maid of honor, for her sister. Clusters of roses trimmed her crownless picture hat and she carried pink roses and sweet peas.

Identical gowns of orchid-hued taffeta fashioned with insets of taffeta frills edged in lace, on the hoop skirts, and off-the-shoulder necklines, were worn by Miss Margaret Maxwell another sister of the bride, and Miss Maureen Smith, her cousin. Both wore headresses and mits to match, and carried bouquets of pink rosebuds.

Charming miniature of bridesmaids was two-and-a-half-year-old Gloria Davidson, in an orchid-period gown, with crownless bonnet, and carrying Colonial bouquet. She wore a gold locket, gift of the bride.

Roy Okell was groomsmen and Kenneth King and Les MacDonald were ushers.

Mrs. Amos and Mrs. J. Smith, aunt of the bride, assisted in welcoming guests at Cherry Bank Hotel. The three-tier cake was topped with a silver vase of pink rosebuds. William McMichael gave the bridal toast.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos are honeymooning at Harrison Hot Springs and in Seattle, Wash. Their new home will be at 1000 Foul Bay Road.

For traveling the bride wore a three-piece suit consisting of navy blue skirt and three-quarter length topcoat, with jacket in wine, navy and white check, matching cloche hat and corsage bouquet of yellow rosebuds.

Sun spots are thought to be composed of whirling gases.

A presentation of an engraved silver entree dish was made during closing exercises at Mount Douglas High School to Miss Constance Sullivan, whose wedding takes place this month. The gift was presented by Mr. Eric Forster, principal of the school, on behalf of staff and students. Members of the girls Hi-Y group also presented Miss Sullivan with a silver condiment set with blue glass linings.

In compliment to Miss Marjorie Alyce Maggs, whose marriage takes place tonight, Miss Mary Shepherd who will be bridal attendant, entertained with a miscellaneous shower at her home, 705 Pandora Avenue, Thursday. Corsage bouquets were presented to Miss Maggs and her mother, Mrs. A. E. Maggs. Other guests were Mrs. N. Shepherd, Mrs. H. Myles and Misses Viola Sands, Joy Whitfield, Margo Shepherd, Edna Lake, Celia Gorst and Doreen Hardy.

A shower was given by Miss Kay Thompson and Miss Edith Gilson at the home of the former, 832 Linkleas Avenue, in honor of Miss Connie Sullivan, a July bride-elect. Gifts of linen were presented on a decorated tea wagon, centred with a replica of a large wedding cake surrounded with tulle. Refreshments were later served from a candlelit table, decorated with Sweetheart roses in crystal holders. Guests were Mesdames A. Sullivan, D. Parfitt, E. Forster, J. Muir, R. Whitley, Misses Doris Ayliff, Betty Bird, Thelma Thompson and Jane Service.

A shower was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Clarkson, 944 Transit Road, honoring her sister-in-law, Miss Rita Clarkson, who is being married this month. Upon arrival, the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. Mary Clarkson were presented with corsage bouquets by little Miss Linda Clarkson, clad in sleepers. The many gifts were arranged around a decorated umbrella. Games were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments served. Other guests were: Mesdames B. Clarke, W. Day, C. Dryden, H. Robb, W. Cave, A. Snelling, F. Allen, D. Charlton, A. Catt, V. Sorenson, Misses Ida Bianco, Frances Cotter and Ruth Collyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barracough entertained about 50 friends and neighbors at a housewarming party, this afternoon, celebrating the completion of their home, "Dogwood Acres," Alderley Road, Elk Lake. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Barracough will entertain 150 friends at an after five party in combined celebration of the 15th anniversary of their wedding and of their new home. Miss Eleanor Hanna, one of Mrs. Barracough's bridesmaids, has come from Vancouver for the occasion and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Barracough at Elk Lake. During the party, Mr. K. C. Symons will propose a toast of good luck to the new house.

Mrs. C. Devine who is leaving Salt Spring Island to make her home in Calgary, was guest of honor at a bridge party given by Mrs. L. R. Snow and Mrs. B. Diffen, at the home of the latter, on Rainbow Road, Ganges Harbor. Guests were Mesdames A. Young, H. Dixon, W. L. Rogers, L. Mouat, A. Cartwright, H. Day and Miss O. Mouat.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shaw will return to their home on Oscar Street shortly after a visit with Mrs. Shaw's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Chiswell, St. John's, Que., and with relatives of Mr. Shaw in Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw motored through Vermont and New Hampshire and will visit friends in Winnipeg and Calgary en route to Victoria.

Among guests attending the marriage of Miss Marjorie Maggs to Mr. Bernard Potentier, which takes place tonight will be Mrs. F. T. Kirkstein and Mr. A. Jensen, Wetaskiwin, Alta.; Miss Nora Poole, Mr. George Maggs and Mr. D. Ashby, Maple Bay; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Kirsten, Mrs. E. On the occasion of her 92nd birthday, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Ness will be honored Sunday afternoon with a reception from 2.30 to 5.30 at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. G. Parker, 3142 Irma Street. Mrs. Van Ness lives at 1160 Pandora Avenue. Born in Derbyshire, England, in 1855, the former Mrs. Elizabeth Holdridge came to Victoria in 1908 and shortly afterward married Mr. Nicholas Van Ness. She has two sons, nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren in Victoria, also four sons in Derbyshire.

Okanagan Trip Follows Wedding

Honeymooning at Harrison Hot Springs, are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robert Calam, whose marriage took place Friday at 8.30 at St. John's Church, with Rev. William Hills officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Calam will travel to the Okanagan before returning to the city to make their home.

The bride, the former Miss Marjorie Joan Mudie, daughter of Mrs. H. Chandler, 284 Paliser Avenue, View Royal, was given in marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Calam, Salmon Arm, by her brother-in-law, A. Broadfoot.

Classic simplicity was featured in the wedding gown of white satin. Orange blossoms held the bride's chapel veil, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and white gladioli.

Mrs. A. Broadfoot, sister of the bride, and Miss Patricia Calam, the groom's sister, wore full-length gowns of pastel blue. Black mohair hats, fastened with blue ribbon bows at the back, and long gloves completed their ensembles, and they carried bouquets of Shasta daisies.

Brian Calam was best man for his brother. Ushering were Jim O'Neil, and Mr. Rheubotham. Rev. Hills gave the toast to the bride at a reception in View Royal Community Hall. Mrs. Chandler and Mrs. G. Calam received guests with the bridal pair. The lace-covered table was centred with a three-tier cake, flanked by vases of sweetpeas.

Mrs. Calam donned a honey beige topcoat over her pale green suit, and chose brown hat, alligator bag and shoes for her traveling costume.

Says 'Au Revoir' To Guest

Mrs. Alvin Robert, right, returned to her home, "The Trees," Midland Way, the Uplands, Friday evening, after accompanying her guest, Mrs. George Hart, left, to Seattle. Mrs. Hart, who is en route to her home in Boston, spent the past week with Mrs. Robert, whom she had not seen since 1933 when they met in Paris. Mrs. Hart, then a student at the Sorbonne University, is now teaching French at one of Boston's high schools.

St. Andrew's Cathedral Scene Of Early Morning Rites

Shasta daisies, gladioli and greenery in standard baskets, and roses, sweetpeas and carnations placed on the altar provided an attractive setting at St. Andrew's Cathedral this morning at 10 when Miss Edna Mary Hawes became the bride of P. O. Ernest, Gerald Worth, R.C.N.

Mrs. E. Malefant sang Schubert's "Ave Maria" and Caesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus," accompanied at the organ by Miss B. McKay.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawes, Halifax, was given in marriage by Sidney Pearson. Clusters of lily of the valley on either side of her head held filmy net misted over the ivory satin gown slightly en train, designed with full sleeves pointed over the wrists, rounded neckline and bodice buttoned down the back to the full skirt. Sweetpeas and carnations were showered in the bridal bouquet. Her only jewelry was her groom's gift, a single strand of pearls.

A bouffant-skirted gown of shell pink net over taffeta was worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Maurice Locke. Mrs. Eileen Fitzpatrick, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, chose a turquoise gown of taffeta with full skirt and bolero-top. Long net mitts and velvet flowers holding their chapel veils matched their frocks. Both carried colonial bouquets.

NEWLYWED'S ATTEMPT TO CHANGE MATE'S HABITS BODES LITTLE GOOD

The reason there are so many divorces is because the first thing the newlyweds do is to try to make each other over according to their own little blue prints, but it can't be done with out leaving behind a lot of blasted hopes and broken illusions that bode no good for a marriage.

Why otherwise intelligent men and women do not marry their ideals in the first place, no one knows, but they don't. Perhaps it is because we all have the reformer complex, and we can't keep from trying to alter people to our taste. It is part of the compulsion that makes a woman, who knows nothing about millinery, rip up a new $40 hat and reconstruct it into a sartorial horror, and that causes a man who buys a house to wall up the old windows and cut new ones and install a different system of plumbing and lighting.

Now as long as people tinker with trying to change material things nearer to their hearts' desires, it is an innocent diversion; but when they undertake to revise as individual's character, it is another pair of sleeves, as the French say. Then it becomes the most dangerous occupation in which they can possibly indulge, and the experiment becomes even more hazardous when the human guinea pig is a husband or wife.

This is inevitable, because nothing in courtship prepares either the bride or the bridegroom for the shock of finding out that their mates did not regard them as little pieces of perfection, but, on the contrary, considered them pretty poor specimens of the genus homo, loaded down with faults and weaknesses which they were going to kindly correct.

MARRIAGE ESSENTIALS

That gives the newlyweds a body blow from which they never really recover. For the one thing that is absolutely essential to a happy marriage is for the husband and wife to idealize each other, and for each to believe that the other hung the moon.

So the honeymoon is definitely over and you might as well hang crepe on the love nest when the husband, who married a glamour girl because she was so pretty and cute, begins to try to make her over into a crackerjack cook and a thrifty housewife, who is more interested in bungalow aprons than she is in mink coats, and who would rather stay at home of evenings and listen to her husband snore than to step out to a night club.

TAKE THEM 'AS IS'

And, the same catastrophe, only worse, happens when the wife undertakes to polish up her rough diamond. Probably more husbands, who were good providers and who started out devoted to the ladies to whom they were married, have been lost through their wives correcting their grammar and pronunciation and table manners than any other way. For the one thing no man can stand is criticism from his wife. Husbands are one of the things that wives have to take "as is" if they want to keep them.

Of course, if men and women would give the subject the serious thought that it deserves, they would realize that by the time people get old enough to marry, their tastes and habits are formed, and they would pick out congenial mates to start with. But this would deprive millions of husbands and wives of their favorite indoor sport of picking on each other. And so they go merrily along attempting to work a miracle that will change a dumb Dora into a highbrow, or quench a souse's thirst for liquor.

Oak Bay Kiwanis Ladies Plan Bridge Tea

Mrs. E. F. Baines, Mrs. J. Maltman and Mrs. C. H. G. Mann, left to right, the committee in charge of arrangements for a bridge and tea at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel to be held on Tuesday from 2.30 to 5.30. The affair is sponsored by the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club and proceeds will be used for equipment for children's playgrounds in Oak Bay.

Three Families In Christening Rites

St. Luke's Church was the scene of a christening ceremony June 30, in which members of three families were principals. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson received the names of Marion Diane, her godparents being Mrs. H. Connor and Charles Randall; Della Joyce, godparents, Mrs. B. Craigdallie and Neise Lewis, and two-month-old Lorna Elene, gowned in a christening robe belonging to her grandfather, godparents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Williams.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Williams was given the names of Jene Arthur, and his godparents are Mr. and Mrs. F. Thompson. The child was gowned in his grandmother's christening robe.

Alfred Charles were the names bestowed upon the eight-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles

Lively Interest Aids Popularity

It's the girl with the sparkle in her eye and the lilt in her voice that commands the attention and admiration of any group. If you usually sit wistfully on the fringes of a party, take heart and heed the advice of Marjorie Hughes, Frankie Carle's vocalist, who is the magnetic centre of any gathering.

People just won't naturally gravitate toward you unless your personality captures their interest. A woman doesn't need to be a brilliant conversationalist, thinks Miss Hughes, but she does need the ability to listen with lively interest to what the other person has to say.

A discussion will flourish if it is nurtured with a friendly smile and a few well-aimed questions. The next time you are talking with a friend, glance at yourself in a mirror—is your face animated, do your eyes reflect your interest, does your smile encourage her to continue?

If you look bored to tears, it's pretty obvious why people don't seek you out at a party. Take yourself in hand and develop the habit of intelligent listening. You'll not only learn a lot, but you will become a more popular person.

Randall. Godparents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Hughes and Herbert Randall.

A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Dixon, 1283 Walnut Street, grandparents of the Thompson children. Mrs. H. Connor and Mrs. B. Craigdallie assisted in pouring tea.

Weavers' Display Interests Many

A handwoven, finely embroidered linen tablecloth made in Cypress, a quilt made in Canada over 100 years ago and a bedspread woven from Quebec flax in 1870 are among many outstanding exhibits in the international display of handweaving being held at the Empress Hotel this week.

Sponsored by Victoria Handweavers' Guild, the display which continues until 10 o'clock tonight, has drawn many visitors. Exhibits are arranged in the Duke of Kent room at the hotel.

A plaid skirt, with hat and bag to match, made by Miss Joan Pickles, youngest member of the Victoria Guild, is among the most interesting pieces in the British Columbia exhibit. Also an evening skirt in the latest styling with an evening blouse, woven by Mrs. Honey Housser, Cloverdale, Indian craft from all parts of the province are being shown by Mrs. J. E. Godman, honorary secretary of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare. Totem pole carvings by John Leslie, Nanaimo, form part of this exhibit.

Members of the Victoria Branch, Canadian Institute for the Blind, are showing upholstery cloth, bags and scarfs. Blankets and tablecloths in bright color designs are a feature of the Mexican weaving and exhibits from the United States show the use of silver and other metal threads which is new in handweaving.

Demonstrations of carding and spinning are being given by Mrs. W. F. Howell and Mrs. W. F. Rankin, president of the Victoria Guild, is demonstrating handweaving.

Exhibitors include the Canadian Handicrafts Guild of Montreal; McKay Handicraft Studio Inc. for the Deaf of Montreal; Portland Weavers and Seattle Weavers; Charlotte County Cottage Crafts of New Brunswick; Melfort, Sask., Weaving Circle; Edmonton Weavers and the B.C. Weavers Guild of Vancouver.

Woman Flying Champ Victim Of Crash

DECORAH, Ia. (AP)—Marge Huriburt, world champion women's speed flier, was killed Friday when a plane she was flying in a holiday airshow crashed at the Decorah airport.

Miss Huriburt, who set a world record for women of 337 miles an hour in Florida last winter, zoomed over the field before a crowd of several thousand spectators and went into a loop.

Her plane failed to come out of the loop and dived into the ground at the east end of the airport.

POSTHUMOUS AUTOBIOGRAPHY

"The Making of a Canadian," by J. F. B. Livesay (Ryerson Press).

FOR more than 30 years, most of them as general manager of the Canadian Press, J. F. B. Livesay was almost solely concerned with getting the story of national and world events to the Canadian public. Now, almost three years to the day since his death in 1944, his own personal story, the summary of his thought, belief, and experience is published in narrative form. The title, chosen by himself, is completely apt as the label for an Isle of Wight boy's development, through farm work, logging, mining, writing, reporting, editing, into a thorough-going Canadian. A Canadian, however, with the universal outlook common to men in whom humanity must always be a stronger impulse than race or politics.

Here for the first time are found in print the stories with which he used to entertain his friends in talk; of childhood in Ireland, of family life on the Isle of Wight—and all Livesay's relatives were "characters" of the almost casual decision to come to Canada where his uncle, Sir Melville Parker had an establishment at Cooksville, and of the venture west, where he first got into serious newspaper work. Work which was to find him managing Canada's first news co-operative, the Western Associated Press, founded in 1907, and later the nation-wide organization the Canadian Press. For the most part the stories are personal, told simply as stories, but with the universal appeal that Livesay, as a newspaper man, would have called "human interest."

The book is edited by Mrs. Livesay—Florence Randal Livesay—herself a writer of accomplishment, who has contributed a memoir of her husband which does a great deal to illumine the self-portrait discoverable in J. F. B. L.'s own account of active life. Mrs. Livesay also has done a painstaking job of choosing for publication certain miscellaneous notes.

NEW VERSE

"Poems for People" by Dorothy Livesay (Ryerson Press)

THE latest volume from the talented pen of one of Canada's leading poetic writers, Dorothy Livesay, is a worthy successor of her previous works.

In the slender volume of verse she has captured much of the beauty and rhythm that makes up Canada, and set it down in the measured cadence of poetry, using for the most part modern forms, but slipping into rhymed verse on occasion.

One of the most notable of the rhymed poems is "Carnival," in which she captures the strong beat of any country fair or circus which offers

"Ambrosial foam is offered—pink enough to make the palate shrink. Along with kewpie, Gums and cushions, Enough to 'Muslane' Educate the Muslane."

She again shows evidence of her deep social consciousness as well as her awareness of beauty, particularly in the section of the book, which is divided into three, to which she gives the title "Poems for People."

Speaking of the "Mourners," she comments: "Not on the lovely body of the world But on man's building heart, his shaping soul. Mourn, with me, the intolerant, hater of sin; Child's mind, maimed before he learns to run."

Book Notes

"The Jewish Population of Canada" by Louis Rosenberg, is published by the Canadian Jewish Congress, Montreal. It is a statistical summary up to 1943, with many illuminating tables, both ethnical and religious.

Houghton Mifflin Co. expects to issue the first volume of Winston Churchill's memoirs in the spring of 1948. They will be published in England, probably at the same time, by Cassell.

A "father-daughter" combination is being noted by Ryerson Press this month, with the publication of the posthumous autobiography of J. F. B. Livesay, "The Making of a Canadian," and the publication of his daughter's latest book of verse, "Poems for People." Both are reviewed in today's column.

Centenarian Dies

Bishop Harold E. Sexton will officiate at funeral services Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Christ Church Cathedral for Mrs. Mary Pearce, 103, a resident of Victoria for 35 years, who died Thursday.

A native of Ipswich, Eng., Mrs. Pearce resided in New Zealand and Australia before coming to Victoria. She arrived here to visit a sister, Mrs. A. A. Green, and liked the city so much decided to stay.

Mrs. Pearce remembered Queen Victoria as a young woman and used to tell friends of many incidents connected with the Crimean War, which began when she was a girl of 11.

A daughter, Mrs. Kate Pegrand of Vancouver, survives Mrs. Pearce, who was the widow of Frederick Pearce of Melbourne, Australia. Hayward's B.C. Funeral Co. are in charge of funeral arrangements.

The sale of seven parcels of city-owned land to veterans for $1,421 and of three parcels to civilians for $715 will be recommended to Monday's City Council meeting. Ald. R. A. C. Dewar, chairman of the lands, zoning and housing committee, said following a meeting Thursday.

A Man Named Job Finds Solution

Scripture: Job 1:1; 27:15; 31:19-28

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Are there problems that are "modern" in the sense that men have never encountered them before our time?

Such a thing is neither impossible nor improbable. For the external conditions of life have changed greatly within a single generation, and new occasions and environments must surely bring some new problems.

We are all living in a world that has become smaller by reason of new discoveries and means of transportation. But at the same time that world has become an immensely enlarged environment for the individual by reason of that very fact.

Facts and contrasts strike a great deal deeper in the new occasions. And so a poet has told us teach new duties, and therefore present new problems.

Nevertheless, some problems are as old as man himself, and one thing that is unchanged is the fact that man himself has to be the problem solver. So ancient experience and wisdom may have much to offer, even in the presence of problems that are as new as the new-born day.

Deep and unchanged in human life is the problem of suffering and especially the suffering of the apparently morally guiltless. Much human suffering offers no problem, though the fact may not alter its acuteness. It is the direct and observable result of sheer disregard of moral or physical laws. But the suffering of the good is another thing.

It is this problem with which the Book of Job deals. The book has been called "a sublime drama of God's providence and man's suffering." Its central character, Job, a man of moral rectitude and apparently blameless life, is stricken with dire calamity, in himself, his family, and his affairs.

The situation is made acutely dramatic to bring out the full reality of the problem. Yet it is no more extreme than that which many men and women have experienced today, especially the thousands of innocent people who suffered war's ruthlessness and Hitlerism.

This essay view Job refuses to accept. His faith is tried, and he is tempted to "curse God and die." But while he finds no solution of the problem of suffering, he finds a solution of his personal problem in the conviction that the Judge of the earth will do right and in the determination to trust Him no matter what may happen.

Rev. J. R. Spittal will be in charge of both services Sunday, Mrs. Spittal will speak in the morning at 11 and choose as her subject, "The All Sufficient Saviour."

The pastor will speak in the Evangelistic Service at 7:30 p.m., calling attention to the greatest need of the hour. Special singing and musical items are arranged.

The Sunday School convenes at 10 a.m. with Bible Class for Adults.

Gallup Poll

Lack Of British Bundles Due To Postage, Ignorance

By Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

The subject of food parcels from Canada to Britain has inspired many a "letter to the editor" recently, some of them complaining that Canadians are not sending enough parcels, and others critical of the way parcels which are sent, are handled.

To the largest single group of Canadians (when opinion is studied by modern scientific sampling), more parcels would be sent if more people realized the genuine need of them in the Old Country. But an almost equal number feel postage rates are too high.

The institute's opinion reporters across Canada asked representative voting-age Canadians this question:

"Which of these do you think is the main reason why people in Canada are not sending as many parcels to Britain as they might?"

While the person interviewed was given four alternative reasons for this alleged situation, he or she was also given an opportunity to volunteer any other reasons.

Here, then are the main reasons, as Canadians see them:

People don't realize the need, 27%; postage rates too high, 23%; things scarce here still, 21%; don't know where to send them, 7%; other reasons, 11%; undecided, 15%.

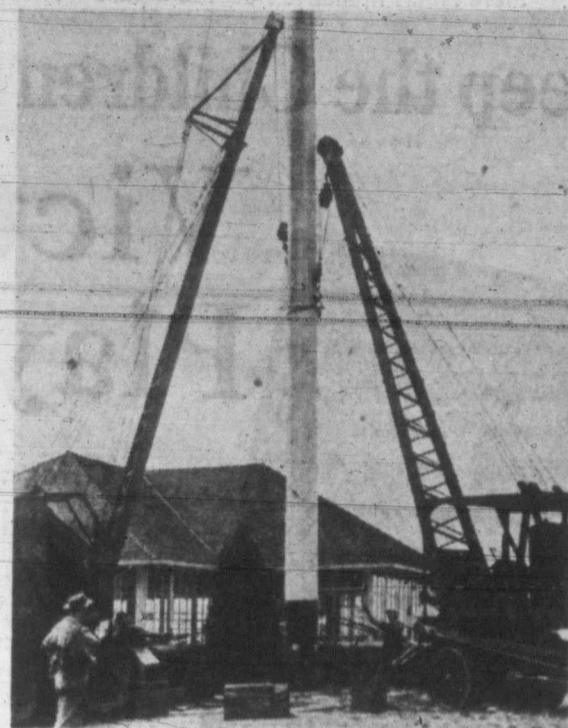

The column adds to more than 100 per cent because some people felt the reason was a combination of two or more conditions. It will be noted that lack of addresses is a comparatively small factor in the public mind.

Chief among the other reasons volunteered by Canadians, as included in the 11 per cent figure above, was that cost of living was so high in Canada that many just could not afford to send parcels to Britain; that parcels sent either did not reach their destination, or were so long delayed in getting there; and that Canadians had lost interest, and contact, now that the Canadian troops were home again.

The idea that Canadian people do not realize the need in United Kingdom for food is held most strongly by voters of British descent. This theory is not held, however, by Canadians of French descent, the largest number of whom think the reason is that supplies are still short in Canada.

Shorten Flagpole At Beacon Hill

The tricky job of removing the bottom six feet of the flagpole at Beacon Hill Park was completed by city workmen Friday, with the aid of two derricks. The bottom section of the pole had begun to show signs of rot. The pole was 156 feet tall when it was erected, to provide for such shortening operations, and it is now 150 feet. The pole was held upright by the derricks while the bottom six feet was sawed off, and then it was slowly lowered back in place.

Famed Seedgrowers Tour Farms Here

Two nationally-known seed-growers and life-long friends, Dr. Senger Wheeler, Victoria, and C. C. Fields, Seattle, were guests of honor at the annual field day of the B.C. Seed Growers' Association this week.

Accustomed to growing seed grain in Saskatchewan, the two experts found much of interest in the smaller but more exacting crops of vegetable and flower seeds seen at the various seed farms visited.

Following a picnic supper at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saanichton, J. L. Webster, seed specialist with the provincial agriculture department, Vancouver, addressed the gathering.

He stressed the fact many vegetable and flower seed crops could be grown to perfection, on Vancouver Island, and he forecast a permanent industry for those growers who could keep production costs at a minimum and yet deliver high quality seed.

During the course of the tour, admiration was shown for seed plots of portulaca on the farms of Fred Barnes, Union Avenue, and Ernest W. Galt, East Saanich Road, and the annual larkspur and godetia on the large flower seed farm of G. A. Robinson and Sons, Elk Lake.

Other farms visited, in which vegetable seed production is featured were those of T. Turnbull, Blenkinsop Road, and Frank Butler, McTavish Road. The party concluded the tour with an inspection of the vegetable seed plots at the Saanichton station.

Building permits have been issued to T. E. Moorcroft to build a 5-room house at 1317 Fernwood Road, $4,700; and to A. W. Konkin to build a 5-room house at 2100 Fernwood Road, $6,500.

PLAZA THEATRE

She was a good little girl and always minded her mother, who is a vocal coach of more than ordinary ability. This is one reason why Marsha Hunt is now regarded as one of the most popular young film players in Hollywood. The other reason, of course, is Marsha's talent.

Her latest role is that of a radio artist's secretary in Walter Wanger's "Smash-Up—The Story of a Woman," Universal-International's brilliant screen drama now at the Plaza Theatre.

DOMINION THEATRE

Although she chose singing as a career when she won an amateur contest at the age of 10, Ruth Terry, who plays opposite Roy Rogers in Republic's deluxe western musical "Hands Across the Border" now showing at Dominion Theatre, has never had a singing lesson.

JIMMIE LUNCEFORD

Famous for its bounding rhythm, its fine harmony, both vocal and instrumental, and for its many entertaining qualities, the popular dance orchestra of Jimmie Lunceford will play at the Bay Street Armories on Wednesday, July 9, under the auspices of the Florence Nightingale Chapter of the I.O.G.E. Proceeds of the dance will go to refurbish the T.B. pavilion at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The Lunceford band is identified with such familiar song hits as "Blues in the Night," "The Honey Drip," "Whatcha Know Joe" and many other tunes which it introduced and popularized on records.

ATLAS THEATRE

Edible beer bottles may make an appearance on the national market soon, thanks to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's ingenious property department.

A scene in "My Brother Talks to Horses," now showing at the Atlas Theatre, called for Peter Lawford, Beverly Tyler and Spring Byington to witness the unveiling of a new invention—a beer bottle one can eat.

Undaunted by the difficulties involved, the prop shop set to work to build such a container. The result is a durable, appetizing bottle made from pretzel dough.

New Oil Tanker Leaves Victoria For Island Ports

The new tanker Western Shell of the Shell Oil Company of British Columbia left for up-island ports late Thursday after completing her maiden voyage to Victoria.

The vessel, under the command of Capt. R. C. Laing, Vancouver, unloaded her first cargo of oil in Victoria Thursday before proceeding to service other coastal ports. Her oil carrying capacity is 250,000 gallons.

Several guests were invited aboard to inspect the oil tanker which was bought from the United States Navy and reconverted in Vancouver at a cost of $100,000. They included Hon. Leslie Eyres, minister of trade and industry; E. G. Rowebottom, deputy minister; H. C. Holmes, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce; Walter Miles, vice-president of the Chamber; Fred Hawes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, harbor committee, and H. B. E. Elworthy, president of Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

New Minister

J. C. A. BARTON

On Sunday morning the members and friends of the Douglas Street Baptist Church, Douglas and Cloverdale, will welcome their new minister and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. A. Barton. Taking part in the service will be T. E. Reason, clerk of the church, and Rev. G. A. Reynolds, recent interim minister. The service will be conducted by the chairman of the board of deacons, W. Tyson Sr.

Originally from Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. Barton have been for the past several years in Hamilton, Ontario, where Mr. Barton has been attending McMaster University and McMaster Divinity School. He was graduated from McMaster in May of this year.

Repair Costs Are Estimated

If desired the customer can be given the cost of repair or overhaul work in advance.

Many an automobile owner hesitates to send his car into the repair shops, for, once the work is started he has the feeling that he may be presented with a staggering bill with which, as a layman, he cannot argue. This mental hazard is removed for the driver who brings his car into McLeod Lumsden's departmentalized repair shops, situated at 865 Yates Street. The well laid out building is organized into departments that will care for every phase of automotive service and repair. Factory-trained personnel are ready to give an accurate estimate of needed work, before the job is started and the customer can know the cost in advance. If a car is due for an overhaul, with the owner's consent it is handed from department to department, speeding up the work and allowing the total costs to be readily estimated. Thus the car owner knows exactly what he must pay and for what he is paying.

To Hold Meeting Supporting Strikers

Colin Cameron, C.C.F. provincial president, will speak at a public meeting to be held July 11 in support of the Nanaimo laundry strikers. It is also planned to have Harold Winch, M.L.A., leader of the C.C.F. opposition, present at the meeting.

Mr. Winch and Herbert Gargrave, M.L.A., have already stood on the picket line with the laundry workers. They have also spoken to meetings in Nanaimo in support of the strikers.

C.C.F. headquarters here have also announced the C.C.F. will not have a speaker at the proposed meeting in Central Park Sunday which is being sponsored by the C.C.L. in support of the strikers.

13th Field Ambulance, R.C.A. M.C. R.F., will hold a unit muster parade next Tuesday at 8. All ranks are expected to attend.

Victoria Machinery Depot Co. has been granted firm membership in American Foundrymen's Association, according to Chicago headquarters of the international technical society of the castings industry. Membership will be held in the name of F. Diment, foundry superintendent, who will be affiliated with the new British Columbia chapter of the A.F.A.

New Champions Of C.P.R. Tennis Club

After keenly-contested finals, these players lifted the various titles in the annual championship tournament of the C.P.R. Tennis Club. From left to right: Bill Browne-Cave, Lillian Warner, Ron Mitchell, Doris Fielder, Harold Sinclair and Aleta Tomlinson. Warner and Mitchell won the singles crowns; Mitchell and Sinclair the men's doubles; Tomlinson and Fielder the women's doubles, and Browne-Cave and Warner the mixed event. Majority of these players are participating in the city championships which opened today at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club.

Margaret Osborne New Wimbledon Titleholder

LONDON (AP)—Margaret Osborne of San Francisco won the women's singles title at the Wimbledon tennis championships today, defeating Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., 6-2, 6-4, in the all-American finals to give the United States a clean sweep of the singles honors.

On a worn centre court swept by a wind that rolled paper cups like tumbleweeds, the top-seeded California favorite fought off a gallant rally by her third-seeded foe to annex the title vacated by America's Pauline Betz when the latter turned professional.

Miss Hart, who dropped the first set on errors from a faulty backhand, stopped what appeared to be a rout after losing the first two games of the final set.

The Miami University star rallied and won four games in a row for a 4 to 2 lead that left Miss Osborne twirling her racket in despair.

That brought the galleries, pulling for an upset of the favorite, to attention.

But Miss Osborne, superior at the net, assumed command once more and ran out the match, although Miss Hart fought stubbornly through the last game.

GREAT COMEBACK

It was deuced three times as Miss Hart staged a thrilling comeback after trailing 15-40. A lob which the wind helped to lead inside the baseline and a muffed smash by Miss Osborne brought them even.

Miss Osborne tugged at her hair as the spectators cheered their approval of Miss Hart's bid to keep the match alive. The thrill was prolonged through the changing fortunes of two more deuces. First Miss Osborne and then Miss Hart had the advantage. But two nets by the Florida girl determined the finish.

The victory, accomplished before Queen Mother Mary and 15,000 other tennis fans, elevated Miss Osborne to a position alongside Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, who recaptured the men's singles title for the United States yesterday with a straight-set triumph over another Californian, Tom Brown.

KRAMER SHARES DOUBLES

Kramer and Bob Falkenberg of Los Angeles, made it three straight titles for the United States by defeating Tony Mottram of Britain and Billy Sidwell of Australia, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3, in another straight-set final to wrap up the men's doubles championship.

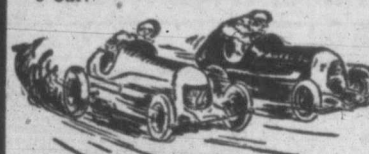

It was the second doubles crown in a row for Kramer, who teamed with Brown to win it a year ago. With Falkenberg today he led the way to victory over an Empire combination that had come into the tournament unranked and upset such seeded pairs as Brown and Budge Patty of the United States and Australia's John Bromwich and Dinny Pails.

Jeff Worrell Blanks Pitzer And Nex With Five-Hitter

Little Jeff Worrell, iron man of the Navy pitching staff, tossed a five-hit shutout at Pitzer and Nex in a senior amateur ball tilt last night as his mates combed the offerings of Murray MacArthur for an 11 to 0 win.

So complete was Worrell's mastery over the gasmen that he never allowed more than one man on base in any one inning. He gave up only one base on balls while striking out four.

Third baseman Hevenor was the big gun in the sailors' nine-hit attack. He smashed out three for four including a triple, drove in three runs and scored three. Ed Langlois turned in a smart game at first while picking up two hits in four trips.

Greeting MacArthur with two straight singles on the first two balls pitched, Navy went on to tally three runs in the first inning. They added three more in the sixth, two in the eighth and wound up with another three-run outburst in the ninth.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 Canadian Legion will play host to Duncan at Athletic Park. Eagles will play two games at Chemainus.

Norm Martin Turns In Three-Hitter As Vets Beat Taximen

Behind the brilliant three-hit pitching of Norm Martin, Army and Navy Vets defeated Blue Bird Cabs 8 to 2 in a senior A softball game last night to move to within one game of second-place Brentwood Aces.

Only Blue Bird player to cause Martin any trouble was Charlie Restell, who picked up a double and a home run and scored the losers' two markers.

Vets scored three runs in the first frame, a singleton in the fourth and pushed four runs across in the eighth. Grunder and Martin hit home runs for the Vets.

In the women's senior A loop Hudson's Bay squeezed out a slim 1 to 0 victory over Eaglettes. Flo Kennedy and Helen Pettigrew engaged in the pitcher's battle with the lone run coming in the sixth inning on a single by Trudy Sweatman, an infield error and a wild pitch.

Superior Produce defeated Naval Stores 3 to 1 in a men's senior B game while another B contest saw Legion Bombers measure R.C.N.A.D. 6 to 1. Ed Gardner allowed five hits for the winning Legion nine.

Black and Whites checked in with a 17 to 9 win over Esquimalt Schooners in a junior boys' tilt.

Yankees Sweep Pair To Continue Streak

Brooklyn will meet New York Yankees in the world series according to the pleasant myth which accepts the July 4 evening standings as an infallible guide to things to come.

Myth is the word for it as far as the National League is concerned for only four times in the last 10 years has it worked out that way.

American League clubs have been more consistent in their mythology. The last six July 4 leaders have clicked home first in September and nine of the last 10.

A pair of Dodger wins over New York yesterday were necessary to keep them in first place because Boston, crowding close, won a pair from the faltering Phillies and remained within one game of the top.

Brooklyn piled up a 16 to 7 edge over the Giants in the morning game at Ebbets Field and won 4 to 3 in the afternoon. Mort Cooper enlivened the proceedings by smashing a homer, the Giants' 35th in 15 consecutive games for a league record. He also stopped Jackie Robinson's hitting streak at 21 games.

Johnny Sain hurled the Braves to an opening 10 to 3 nod over the Phils for his 10th victory, and Walter Lanfranconi, came through with a four-hitter, 7 to 1. St. Louis Cards shut out Chicago 7 to 0, on Red Munger's three-hitter but then blew the second, 5 to 4, to remain deadlocked with the Cubs.

The hot Yankees ran their win streak to five by downing Washington twice, 7 to 3, and 4 to 2.

Boston finally shook off the Philadelphia A's after losing the first game to the Mackens 8 to 6 in 12 innings, the sixth straight loss to that club. In the second tilt, Tex Hughson turned in an impressive three-hit 4 to 0 shutout.

Detroit took a 13 to 6 walloping from Cleveland and then held on for a 4 to 4 tie in the second game, called by agreement at the end of the ninth.

EVIDENCE THAT professional baseball is popular with Victorians is the attendance figure of 64,666 for the 43 home games the Athletics have played to date. That averages out at 1,504 per game and, with 77 games scheduled at the local park, means a season attendance mark of 115,808. Split a figure would be better than 13,000 over last season's total gate. However, with the warm nights of July and August ahead, the club is practically certain to draw increased gates so there is every chance the final figure will be around 120,000. The team, strengthened by recent pitching additions, should be right in the thick of the pennant race which will also tend to increase attendance. These figures are the answer to those who were of the opinion a pro ball team would not prove a success in this city.

ONE OF BASEBALL'S mysteries is how an ordinary player on one team can become a star just by changing to another. No explanation is offered here, but one can point to Joe Gordon, George McQuinn, Harry Walker and Bob Elliott of the American and National League all-star teams that clash Tuesday as prime examples of such revivals. Gordon was traded away by the New York Yankees after president Larry MacPhail decided the club couldn't use him; McQuinn was cut loose by the Philadelphia Athletics; the St. Louis Cardinals shuffled Walker off to Philadelphia for Ron Northey, who has been helpful but not as outstanding as Harry, and Elliott figured in the deal by which the Pittsburgh Pirates acquired Billy Herman as manager. You might also toss in Eddie Miller, who "retired" during the off-season because he was weary of baseball and Rudy York, who was dealt from the Boston Red Sox to the Chicago White Sox while he was being voted on to the all-star squad.

ACCORDING TO SEVERAL prominent eastern sports writers, the recent death of Jimmy Doyle in Cleveland may hand boxing its stiffest jolt in years. The game welterweight died of a brain injury a few hours after he had been knocked out by champion Ray Robinson. After a ring fatality public alarm grows and criticism follows. Old-timer Billy McCarney insists that trainers, managers and promoters should act in protection of the fight game in refusing to handle any fighter who suffers a head injury serious enough to send him to hospital.

MCCARNEY GOES BACK to a bitter experience he had in Calgary in 1913 when he saw his white hope heavyweight, Luther McCarthy, die in the first round of a bout with Arthur Pelkey from a jab that broke his neck. In insisting that Doyle never should have been permitted to enter a ring after his injury in Cleveland 15 months ago against Artie Levine, McCarney said his fighter (McCarthy) never before had been hurt in a fight. "I wish we had had a warning as clear as Doyle's," the veteran manager said. Doyle was out of action for nine months after Levine flattened him and there is some question as to whether the earlier injury had some effect in weakening him for the fatal blow.

Seven Victoria golfers have entered the 46th annual Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournament which opens in Portland at the Alderwood Country Club, Monday.

Gordon Verley and Bill Newcombe head the list of the six locals who will compete in the men's division. Others include Bert Snape, Wally Bowden, Tom Forbes and W. H. Haldane, vice-president of the P.N.G.A. Miss Isabel Jarvis, Gorge Vale titleholder, will compete for the women's title.

The annual city junior golf championship will be decided over the Colwood course July 13, it was announced today.

Consisting of 36 holes medal play, the championship has drawn an entry list of leading junior shotmakers of the city including such well-known name players as Gordon Dods, Uplands; Bob Fleming, Gorge Vale; Gary Shepherd, Oak Bay, and Laurie Kerr of Colwood.

The Carmichael trophy, won last year by Ken Lea, will be awarded to the winner. Prizes will also be presented for low net scores.

A's Split Winning In Extra Innings

Victoria Athletics continued to cling to fourth place in the Western International League baseball race, following a split in two July 4 engagements at Tacoma Friday. After dropping the opener 15 to 4 the A's staged a thrilling comeback to grab off the second 4 to 3 in extra innings. Scheduled to go seven innings it was not until the ninth that the Victoria club broke through to put over the deciding run.

Bremerton Bluejackets moved two games ahead of the pack by virtue of a 4 to 3, 6 to 5 double victory over Vancouver. The wins were the Jackets' third and fourth in a row over the Caps by a one-run margin. Spokane ran into trouble against Yakima, who won the opener of a doubleheader 7 to 6 and deadlocked 8 to 8, in the nightcap called at the end of the eighth by the midnight curfew.

Salem Senators squeezed by Wenatchee 2 to 1 in the opener and then dropped the finale 9 to 7.

Tacoma edged into fifth place over Vancouver. Playing before a capacity crowd, Tacoma broke through for three runs on five hits in the fifth inning of the second game, but the battling Athletics promptly tied the count in the sixth. Two free passes issued by Chetkovich followed by a ringing double from Jack Harshman's potent bat, a timely pinch-single by manager Ted Norbert and a wild pitch accounted for the visitor's runs.

Victoria appeared headed for a lop-sided win in the seventh as they loaded the bases with none out in the seventh, but failed to score, a double play by way of the plate choking off the uprising.

In the ninth, however, Bill White led off with his first hit of the day, a double, which Tacoma's Roy Paton lost in the sun. Vic Mastro followed with a single, but White was trapped between third and the plate attempting to score on the hit. Mastro moved to third on the run down.

Babe Jensen followed and promptly banged out a solid single to bring Mastro home with the winning run.

The opening game was Tacoma's all the way as they unleashed a powerful 21-hit attack and were never headed after the second inning when Victoria took a short-lived 2 to 1 lead. Carl Shapley held the Victoria squad to four hits for the entire route and they were only able to add singletons in the fourth and eighth after two-run second inning spurge.

Pete Tdeschi with a homer, triple and two doubles in six trips paced the Tacoma club. Hedington hit four for four.

Short scores follow:
First game: N. Y. Yankees 7, Brooklyn 3.
Batteries: M. Cooper and Lombardi; Taylor and Edwards.
Second game: N. Y. Yankees 7, Brooklyn 0.
Batteries: Mungler and Rice; Chipman, Kuhn, Schmitz, Judd and Padgett.
First game: N. Y. Yankees 10, Philadelphia 3.
Batteries: Sain and Camelli; Heigiste, Schmitz, Judd and Padgett.
Second game: Boston 7, Philadelphia 1.
Batteries: Lanfranconi and Masi; Leonard, Judd and Semnick.
First game: Pittsburgh 6, Cincinnati 2.
Batteries: Roe, Bahr, Singleton and Sankel; Blackwell and Lamanna.
Second game: Pittsburgh 4, Cincinnati 0.
Batteries: Hiebs, Bahr and Elvli; Gumbert and Mueller, Lamanna.

News Of The Anglers

By ROY THORSEN

When the clock strikes six tomorrow morning, the Saanich Inlet sport fishing grounds will be the scene of another heavy invasion of anglers seeking to place on the prize ladder in the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association second annual Solarium derby.

A crowd equal to last Sunday's heavy parade of active rod artists is the expectation in this competition open to the public.

During the week, including last Sunday, fishing has not been encouraging. In fact there are scores of anglers who have been quite definitely emphatic in the use of the word bad. A check around the inlet bathhouses yesterday did not reveal any catches of note during the week. The water has taken on a rusty tinge and become quite murky with the disintegration of millions of jellyfish.

A few last-minute notes on tomorrow's fishfest: Final guns sound at 4 in the afternoon, with prize presentation to take place at the Anchorage headquarters, Brentwood Bay, shortly after. Tickets will be available at the fishing grounds.

Anchorage weigh-in committee is president Harry Woolston, Dr. E. L. Jones, derby committee chairman, Geo. Mann and Ray Ritchie, president of the Chinookers, Tommy Cole will function in the same way at Hall's, and Gordon Holder at Deep Cove.

FIRST DEEP COVE BUTTON

First Deep Cove member of the association to weigh in a specimen to qualify for his bronze button at that locality was H. Tudor. This week he reeled in a 21½-pound catch. Last Saturday night Stan McClure weighed in one going over 30 pounds at the same station, but not being a member could not claim for a silver emblem.

A hanson plug, 200 feet of cut-thunk line and eight ounces of weight was the tackle used by Fred Gray, Grass Valley, California, who reeled in a 20-pounder Thursday in the inlet. Miss M. Thatcher, Edmonton, fishing with her brother, in Misery Bay waters during the midweek, was a plenty proud Miss when she landed a 15½-pound salmon lured by a lucky louse plug. It was her first saltwater fishing trip.

Cecil Marryatt, 1814 Lillian Street, took the big fish laurels of the week—that is aside from last Sunday's topflight 36½-pounder derby winner—when he reeled in a 31-pounder off Whitaker's Point and weighed it in for a silver button claim. He was using a silver spoon and was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Marryatt, their two sons and Alec Urquhart.

There were two or three other button fish taken, including a 23-pounder by Tom Alexander, fishing with Jim Gilbert who took a 17-pounder. Ken Bradley scored a 17½ pound salmon off the boulder, Fred Sparks a 16-pound specimen in the same waters. Capt. Cruchley took catches of 22 and 15 pounds Wednesday. Other midweek catches were: J. H. Smith, 15; Roy Taylor, 12½; Fred Bramble, 16½; J. Moir, 9½, and Otto Effa, 17½.

REVIEWS

Short bits: Sid Pinchbeck, angling in Oak Bay waters, lost rod, reel, line and lure overboard for a $65 loss. He was with next-door-neighbor Roy Lund... "Yes," said Oak Bay's Mrs. Johnny Bowker, "there was a 23-pounder caught here Thursday evening, but the fishing public should not let this panic them into a rush to this area because there aren't sufficient fish around to warrant it." The catch was taken by Ernest H. Clark, Windward Road. He also caught a six-pounder. No. 7 wonder and six ounces of weight were used to lure the catch off Ten-Mile Point.

"Times" Tommy Thomas has been taking cutthroat trout in Langford Lake in the evening. He caught four one night on the dry fly.

Field Trials Slated By Gun Dog Club

At a meeting of the Victoria Gun Dog Club held recently, it was decided to hold field trials for setters and pointers and other breeds of dogs that flush game.

Club members will meet at the Poodle Dog Cafe tomorrow morning at 6 from where they will leave to look over grounds in the Cowichan area.

MINOR BASEBALL

Pushing across the winning run in the seventh inning Victoria Bottle Exchange edged Grenek's Service Station 5 to 4 in a midweek game at Beacon Hill Park last night. Associated Boys' Club whipped Tillikums 16 to 6 in a bantam section game. Ron Pearce and Ray Clarke were the winning pitchers.

Gallant Simon In Handicap Triumph; Favorites Get Down

VANCOUVER (CP)—Favorites dominated the field at Lansdowne Park Friday with six coming down in front.

Gallant Simon, Louis Graziano's speedy gelding, grabbed the American Handicap without a great deal of trouble, stepping the six furlongs in 1:11 2/5, just one-fifth of a second off the track record. King's Honor was second and Baby Broom came in to show.

Two jockeys scored riding doubles. Emil Sporti scoring in the first and fifth aboard King Fairway and Sir Achtol, while Stan Connell booted home Just Once in the sixth and Gallant Simon in the seventh.

Longest price of the day was returned by Brunshot in the fourth—$12.60 for a $2 nose bet. The daily double of King Fairway and Sun Veil was worth $11.75, while Lady Playfair and Paramine returned a $4.65 quinnella.

Wrecked Trawler On Ways

Undergoing repairs at Falconer Marine Industries Ltd. is Karmar I, which was damaged when driven ashore at Boulder Beach, west of Jordan River, Wednesday.

Town Topics

St. John's A.Y.P.A. will hold a beach party Tuesday at Cadboro Bay. Buses will leave the Coach Lines Depot at 7.15.

The Tisdale Association will hold its annual picnic on Wednesday at Willows Park. Prizes will be given for different events.

The postponed meeting of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association will be held next Tuesday at 2 in the lower hall of First Baptist Church.

No. 59 L.A.A. Workshop R.C.E. M.E. will parade Monday at 7.45 p.m. Dress: Roll call order with belt and anklets. The unit will be inspected by the D.O.C.

Canadian Scottish Regiment will parade Monday at 7.30 for D.O.C.'s inspection at 8. Dress: battledress blouse, kilt, Rob Roy hose, short puttees, boots. Sports parade will be held at 7.30 next Thursday.

The placing of refuse containers on city streets with advertising on the sides was refused by the public works committee at a meeting Friday, Ald. J. D. Hunter, chairman stated. Ralph Pashley and Lee Halberg made application to have the containers on the streets, but Ald. Hunter said he would recommend to the council the requests be not granted, while reaction to the basket-type containers now being placed on the streets is sought.

Evacuee Wins

Ian Simpson, headmaster of Glenlyon Preparatory School, has received word that Conrad Jones has won an exhibition to Blundell's School, England, valued at £50 a year for four years. Jones was an evacuee from England during the war and attended Glenlyon School for five years, going to Blundell's in January last when under 13 years of age.

Young Girls Not Safe On Streets, Attacks Increase

The most rapidly increasing type of crime is that perpetrated by degenerate sex offenders. J. Edgar Hoover states that in the past 10 years the increase ranges from 62 to 142 per cent.

Last summer a 15-year-old girl was forced into a car by two young men and criminally assaulted from 11.30 that night until 5.30 in the morning. The two "maniacs," aged 24 and 25, were identified and arrested. A 17-year-old girl, a 48-year-old man attempted to rape a 12-year-old girl suffering from spinal meningitis in an isolation ward.

J. Edgar Hoover states that the nation's women and children will never be secure until we face reality. When sex offenders are identified they must be cured through medical attention or deprived of their freedom forever — not only for one or two years, as they are today, then released to prey upon women and children again.

Every father and mother can do their part. Read the article, "How Safe Is Your Daughter," in the American Magazine, now on sale at your magazine dealers. The complete facts and case histories told in the story are true. Many parents will be shocked.

May Queen Film Now Available

Members of Victoria's May Queen court, their parents and officials of the May 24 Celebrations' Association attended the premier showing at the Douglas Hotel of a film taken by the Victoria Amateur Movie Club of Victoria's May 24 Celebrations last Thursday night.

The film is all in color and consists of two 500-foot reels. The movie was made from shots taken by six members of the movie club who covered all phases of the four-day celebrations. The entire film takes 40 minutes to run.

The film will now be made available to any club or organization which would like to have these pictures show at their club meeting. Arrangements for such a showing can be made by contacting Norman Foster at the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Foster said this morning the film will be sent to the United States at the end of the year where it will be shown to publicize Victoria and the May celebrations.

GOOD EVENING

A large number of you folks who read the Times need little introduction to our store, many of you have been our customers for a long time now, so we thought you would be interested in knowing of our new store location. It's at 721 Johnson St., just half a block up from Douglas, on the same side of the street as Maynard's and right next door to Fred's Store. We think that you know that our slogan, "At Gray's You Save" is not just a slogan, but it is actually a fact, and when we make any sale it is on the understanding that we will return your money in full if the goods we sell to you are not as we represent them to be. That's the only way we care to do business and the folks who buy here do so confidently.

Umpire Attacked In Wild Outburst At San Francisco

On the fourth of July all up and down the Pacific Coast League baseball circuit comparative calm prevailed, but in San Francisco 19,639 fans got a bit of unscheduled fireworks that blew the second game of a double-header dangerously near to forfeiture.

The melee, marked by fist fights, cushion-throwing and an attack by a fan on an umpire, started in the fourth inning.

After umpire Jack Powell ordered Bill Kelly, manager of the Los Angeles Angels, out of the park, a fan got into a scuffle with the umpire, but players parted them.

In the sixth, Powell ousted outfielder Eddie Sauer from the game and such a barrage of cushions descended on the field that forfeiture of the game was threatened.

In the last inning, more cushions were thrown and the game was held up for five minutes. Then, after the last out was made, fans poured onto the field and fist fights broke out. San Francisco coach Del Young rushed to umpire Powell's rescue.

San Francisco and Los Angeles split the doubleheader, the Seals winning the opener 3 to 2 and the Angels copping the nightcap 4 to 2.

Hollywood took a twin bill from Oakland 8 to 4 and 8 to 1; San Diego and Sacramento divided, the Solons taking the first 4 to 2 and the Padres the nightcap 9 to 7 while Seattle and Portland also split. Portland took the first 6 to 4 and the Rainiers the second 5 to 1.

Ed Oliver Scores Record 131 To Pace Tam O'Shanter Golf

CHICAGO (AP)—Under pressure of a 500 to 1 side bet on the 18th green with promoter George S. May, Ed (Porky) Oliver Friday missed an 18-foot, $3,000 birdie putt—but still carded a record-breaking 36-hole score of 131 to nail down the halfway lead in the Tam O'Shanter golf jamboree.

The putt would have given the 30-year-old Wilmington, Del., pro a competitive course record of 64, which would have been eligible for a $666 special prize. May also lobbied on a pressure wager with Oliver after he stepped onto the last green, surrounded by some 2,500 spectators.

If Oliver had sunk it, "it would have been worth at least $3,000 to him," May said.

Air Cadets From All Parts Of B.C. Now In Training At Patricia Bay

Training began in real earnest today for a contingent of 300 air cadets who arrived at Patricia Bay Friday from all parts of British Columbia and Alberta to attend the first of a series of two weeks' training courses. Nineteen Victorians were among the group.

The air cadet camp was officially opened by Group Capt. F. R. West, commanding officer of the station at a ceremony held in the station's recreation building Friday afternoon. Air cadet officials, including Wing Cmdr. R. M. Prayne, principal chaplain at air force headquarters, were in attendance.

Today the camp hummed with activity as the boys, ranging between 14 and 18 years, began attending classes of instruction on aircraft maintenance, navigation and a variety of other subjects which included wireless, photography and armament.

Some of the cadets went on their first flight as passenger navigators aboard a large R.C.A.F. Douglas DC-3. The course includes at least a half hour flying time for every member of the contingent.

Cadets who attended a wireless class were shown the latest equipment in use by the R.C.A.F. while others had their first try at flying a link trainer. They were also taught the theory of navigation and were shown the use of safety equipment such as parachutes and dinghies.

Also interesting to the cadets are lectures on armaments touching on everything from a rifle to a rapid-firing machine gun. The importance of use of aerial photography is also included in the training curriculum.

The training program touches every phase of aviation. Cadets, however, only attend classes in the morning, while the afternoon is entirely devoted to giving the cadets a good time. A program of organized sports has been prepared as well as sightseeing tours to Victoria and to spots near Patricia Bay.

The cadets are being trained under a competent R.C.A.F. cadet unit, composed of 22 officers, N.C.O.'s and airmen who have been trained for that type of work.

Officer commanding the cadet camp is veteran flyer, Sqdn. Ldr. C. N. McVeigh, a 28-year-old transport flyer who served throughout the war overseas. Chief ground officer is Sqdn. Ldr. Kirkcald, while R. J. Mitchell is in charge of navigation. For spiritual guidance the cadets have Sqdn. Ldr. F. MacLean and Sqdn. Ldr. T. R. Lancaster.

The contingent is the first of three groups who will train at Patricia Bay. Close to 1,000 boys are expected to attend the camp this summer.

Paul D. Brown, garden editor of the Seattle Star, and for many years previously, in charge of the grounds of the Seattle Arboretum, will be the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Victoria Horticultural Society at the City Hall Tuesday evening at 7.30. Mr. Brown's talk will cover the subject of "Garden Planning," and will be preceded by the "question and answer" period designed to assist Victorians with their every-day garden problems.

Financial Aid For Girls' Drill Team Problem For Group

Who is going to sponsor the Victoria Girls' Drill Team?

This was the question which provoked the most discussion at the annual meeting of the Tourist Trade Group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce held Friday.

It was pointed out to the meeting that in past years both the City Council and the provincial government had given annual grants of $250 for the support of the team. In addition, local merchants subscribed between $700 and $800 for the team's traveling expenses.

This year, the City Council "could not see its way clear to give such a grant," and in view of this action by the city fathers, the provincial authorities have made it known they will not continue financial support in the future.

Norman Foster, founder of the team, informed the members that considering the publicity value, the cost of support was very small.

G. I. Edgewood suggested that a representative committee of the Tourist Trade Group should again go into the matter with the City Council and find just what the council's attitude was.

His suggestion was accepted and Mr. Edgewood, Mr. Neely, Wm. Mooney and S. Olsen were appointed to the committee to arrange the interview.

Province Appoints 3 For Central Voters' Registry

The B.C. government has appointed three administrative officers in a move to establish the central registry of voters for the province provided for in amendments this year to the Provincial Elections Act.

Becoming chief electoral officer for the province is Frederick H. Hurley, administrative assistant to the provincial secretary. Mr. Hurley will take over duties formerly handled by the deputy provincial secretary.

G. M. Phillips will continue as registrar-general of voters for the province. Mr. Phillips is registrar of voters for Burnaby, Vancouver East, Centre, Burrard and Point Grey.

Third appointee is Kenneth G. Wiper, who is appointed provincial deputy registrar-general. Mr. Wiper is registrar for Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt.

The district registrar's office here will be at 910 Gordon Street, former liquor permit issuing office, where the master roll of B.C. voters will be kept under the supervision of the registrar-general. When the central voters' list is compiled it will be kept up to date by means of cards sent in from other district offices.

100 Delegates To Authors' Convention

The national convention of the Canadian Authors' Association is expected to bring about 100 delegates to Victoria on Tuesday.

The main sessions start at Vancouver on Monday, and on Wednesday on will continue there till the end of the week. Delegates visiting Victoria are expected to arrive on Tuesday morning's boat, and business sessions will be held in Prince Robert House. An address of welcome will be given by the local president Mrs. H. W. Manusell with a response by Dr. Neil F. Morrison. The presidential address will be given by W. A. Deacon of Toronto, president of the National Association. Mrs. R. W. McClung is also expected to be present and to speak.

At noon the delegates will be the guests of the provincial government at lunch at the Empress Hotel, where an address on behalf of the government will be given by Hon. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education. After a brief afternoon business session the visitors will be taken to a garden party at Government House. The day will conclude with a dinner at the Empress Hotel, where Audrey Alexandra Brown, W. E. Ireland and Dr. Murray Gibbon will be among the speakers. Some of Dr. Gibbon's "Ballads of British Columbia," will be sung by Miss Sylvia Chippendale of Vancouver. The visitors will leave on the midnight boat. A number of distinguished writers from eastern Canada and the prairie provinces are expected to attend.

Shipping officials said they expected as many to arrive today from Seattle and Port Angeles. Black Ball Ferry officials reported the Chinook carried approximately 275 cars to Victoria from the U.S. mainland yesterday, and were obliged to leave many behind because of the lack of space.

Major hotels were besieged with requests for accommodations and have described this week-end as one of the "busiest in years."

TIES THAT BIND

BECAUSE THE AIR is full these days of discordant notes between nations, it is well to take cognizance of the little happenings which tend to preserve international harmony.

That was my reaction to a piece of news which a former Victoria girl, now resident in New York, sent to her mother here the other day.

It told of a gift of $50,000 which the oldest Protestant Episcopal Church in that metropolis has sent to London for the restoration of the oldest church in the English capital, which was blitzed in the recent war.

BOW BELLS

THE DONOR IS TRINITY CHURCH, at the corner of Broadway and Wall Street, and the recipient is the famous old church of St. Mary-le-Bow, Cheapside.

St. Mary-le-Bow was designed by Sir Christopher Wren in 1670, and was built over an even earlier church's foundation, which had a Norman crypt dating back to the year 1090.

But its greatest fame lies in its Bow Bells, which are part of the legend and history of Sir Richard (Dick) Whittington, who was four times Mayor of London in 1397, 1398, 1406 and 1419.

DICK WHITTINGTON

THE STORY GOES THAT as a boy he ran away from the home of a wealthy Cheapside merchant, where he had been employed as a scullion.

As he trudged through the then adjacent fields, he heard Bow Bells apparently saying "Turn again, Whittington, thrice Lord Mayor of London Town," a message which he heeded—with beneficial results.

But to Englishmen and women the world over, Bow Bells is associated with the old saying that anyone born within the sound of them is a genuine Cockney.

LINK WITH TRINITY

TRINITY'S GIFT TO THE HISTORIC London church was inspired by a centuries-old bond between the two edifices.

The New York church was founded by royal charter in 1697, and in designating the $50,000 as a commemorative gift on its 250th anniversary, an interesting association was recalled.

For in that royal charter, King William the Third of England named St. Mary-le-Bow as a London model for the New York parish to follow in the conduct of its affairs and the duties of its churchwardens.

TRINITY'S ANCIENT BELL

NOR WAS THAT ALL. For Rt. Hon. Henry Compton, who was Bishop of London at that time, also gave tangible evidence of "the ancient city's interest in the pioneer church."

In Trinity's charter, the King named him as its titular rector. And the Bishop sent from London in 1704 a large bell that today still rings from the tower of the Chapel of the Intercession in Trinity Parish—and which is attended by the former Victorian in question.

That early association has never been forgotten. That's why the present Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. John William Charles Wand, came over from England to take part in Trinity Church's recent anniversary.

FAITH OF OUR FATHERS

IN THE LIGHT OF THIS history, Rev. Dr. Frederic S. Fleming, rector of Trinity Parish, in announcing the gift toward the restoration of St. Mary-le-Bow, said, in part:

"We have designated its use because of the historic connection of our own parish in New York with the ancient London church to which we owe unbounded gratitude for its witness to the faith of our fathers through the human turmoil of centuries."

We, in Victoria, have just witnessed another example of the close-knit ties being woven by those who, while on different sides of a national border, share the same faith.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

YESTERDAY, The First Christian Church Choir came to sing in the First United Church here. They came, at their own expense, as a token of good neighborliness.

Appropriately, too, they chose for that good-will demonstration the anniversary of a day which their country dedicated to the celebration of its victory over all things British.

Their "good neighbor" visit thus bears witness—as will Bow Church when it again rises phoenix-like from its ashes—to the strength and solidarity of a Christian fellowship between our peoples which has withstood the test of time.

Perhaps a little more of such spiritual reciprocity between nations might change the character of tomorrow's headlines. Who knows?

An order-in-council at the Legislative Buildings today authorized establishment of a health area water shed at China Creek to protect the Port Alberni water supply.

The annual school picnic of First Baptist Church was held at the Experimental Farm Wednesday. Three buses and private cars took 200 people to the picnic grounds. The sports were under the direction of Wilfred

Rochester Photo Museum First In World

Photographer and subject alike are dressed to match the age of the 1870-vintage camera being demonstrated in Rochester, N.Y. This old-time camera, which included a built-in laboratory that had to be toted along, will be part of the collection in the Photo Institute to be housed in the Eastman home.

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—The nation's millions of amateur and professional photographers soon will have a shrine of their own.

The world's greatest collection of photographs and photographic material will be assembled and exhibited in the home here of George Eastman, Kodak inventor. The institute, first of its kind anywhere, will be in operation within two years.

The University of Rochester and Eastman Kodak Co. will cooperate on the project. The company's collection will be turned over to the institute. The University is contributing the Eastman home which was willed to the University by Eastman and has served since his death in 1932 as home for the University's president.

Photographic albums of Victor Hugo, Emperor Napoleon III, Queen Victoria and others will be there. There will be pre-photography devices for recording pictures such as the camera obscura, the Silhouette, and the Physionotrace, a large collection of Daguerreotypes, Daguerrotype apparatus, even Daguerre's paintings and sketches.

The collection includes wet collodion outfits, albumen prints, 19th century candid and miniature cameras used as secret devices.

ANTIQUES WORK

There is historical material showing development of the dry-plate cameras, roll film and roll-film cameras, lens, printing processes, motion-picture cameras and projectors and materials for color photography. There are even several of the famous Gaumont three-color movie projectors with sound, built in 1912.

Most of the apparatus is preserved in its original working condition.

It will cost an estimated $300,000 to get the George Eastman House, as it will be known, ready for the public and another $100,000 a year to operate it. Eastman Kodak Co. will foot this bill for at least five years.

When completed, the Institute is expected to draw camera fans, students, scientists and engineers from all over the world. The Institute plans to hold contemporary photographic exhibits and offer lectures.

"Such an institution," says Thomas J. Hargrave, Eastman president, "will surely be a mecca not only for the pictorial world but also for the growing number of people interested in the uses of industrial photography, for photographic magazine editors and technical editors of the press, and for amateur snapshooters."

Alan Valentine, President of the University of Rochester, hopes the Institute will become a "cultural centre for Rochester and far beyond and a centre of those photographic arts of which Eastman was the chief creator."

Historic Smithy To Be Preserved

HOUNSLOW, Middlesex, England, (CP)—Blacksmith Jimmy Betteridge and the ghosts of Mr. Pickwick and highwayman Dick Turpin are heaving sighs of relief. For Hounslow Council decided not to pull down Jimmy's 17th-century smithy.

Here, within a few yards of the busy metropolitan high street the small wily blacksmith has shod and groomed horses for 30 years. The smithy, he says, is Hounslow's last link with the rollicking days of the stagecoach, the oldest building in the borough.

Part of the hard-pine loft where horse grooms once slept, collapsed about 10 years ago and Jimmy uses what is left as a junk room.

While clearing ash from under the fire recently, he discovered a horse-shoe of unusual design. Experts said it was at least 250 years old and put it on show at the local museum.

HIGHWAYMEN'S LAIR

Nearby Hounslow Heath was a favorite hunting ground for highwaymen and legend has it that

Dick Turpin and his Black Bess groomed at the smithy.

Stage coaches, crammed with Dickensian characters, rumbling along the Bath Road to London, used to stop there and while the horses were being fed and groomed the travellers took refreshment at the adjoining Royal George Inn.

The inn was built in 1695 and although the exterior has been remodelled, the public rooms are still much the same as coach travellers and highwaymen knew them.

"It would be a crime to pull down this smithy," the blacksmith said. "American tourists always come here and during the war Yankee soldiers used to ride

Plant World Like Human Society Not Handpicked

Walking along Richmond Road the other day to the Veterans' Hospital I was attracted by a piece of waste ground by the sidewalk. Here where part of the old Jubilee garden met a long heap of clayey debris there was an interesting association of cultivated and wild plants, of flowers and weeds, of native and imported species.

The plant world at our doors curiously parallels human society in more than one respect. Its membership is not hand-picked but is a mingling of the purposeful and the accidental, of the native and the immigrant.

I first noticed a rich growth of nepeta, a mass of dark lavender color. Its common name is catnip or at least that is the familiar name of its wild representative in southern England and in Ireland and which is met with here in places as an introduction. This however was a fine growth of the gardener's species which is probably of Asiatic origin, and may be a descendant from the gardening days of the late Dr. Hazell of the Jubilee's early days. Mrs. Hazell and he were both very keenly interested in the grounds of the hospital.

ATTRACTIVE TO CATS

The nepeta belongs to the large family of mints, and owes its name of catnip to its odor which is more or less attractive to cats. Not far from the nepeta's flowering mass I came on another member of the mint family, an old and at one time greatly honored one though now comparatively little thought of: the white horehound or Marrubium vulgare. It is a sturdy plant of upright habit of growth and with leaves that are roundish in shape, soft to the touch, covered with wrinkles, and clothed with soft white down. The small white flowers are clustered in whorls in the axils of the leaves. The leaves have a peculiar bitter aromatic smell.

The plant has been with us a long time. Forty-five years ago it was extremely common, perhaps more so than today, about yards and old buildings, most of which have gone. It is the source of the horehound that formed so important a part of old-fashioned cough medicines and lozenges: a recipe-book of 1829 has a method of crystallising or candying the latter with sugar.

FAVORITE REMEDY

One of the infusions of horehound was made from the roots of it and of licorice with twice the quantity of brandy. A tea made from the leaves and sweetened with honey was once a favorite remedy for coughs.

The name marrubium we owe to the Roman naturalist Pliny who derived it from a Hebrew word "marrubon" or bitter. Its bristles like those on the stem but smaller and often hooked.

The curious and interesting thing about this plant is that the leaves instead of taking the various positions of most leaves, that is, facing in more or less all directions indifferently, turn so as to lie vertically with their axes north and south. On this account the prickly lettuce is numbered with one or two others as a "compass plant."

This property is, I fancy more peculiar to the plant in sunny countries; at least I find no mention of it in British books. Here it is very well displayed. Some botanists think this actually the ancestor of our garden lettuce.

LAWYER:

A lawyer's charges for his services are based upon the amount of time required, the difficulty of the matter and the amount involved in it.

A tariff of legal charges which fixes the fee to be charged for most legal services is in force. This tariff is settled by the Judges of the Supreme Court. The charge for services will be in accordance with this tariff, unless a special arrangement is made.

All too frequently people get into trouble or difficulty before consulting a lawyer. Legal service then becomes more costly. It is important that a lawyer be consulted in any special circumstance or before being committed to any unusual undertaking.

Guidance is much less costly than litigation.

'Pop' Concerts Popping Out All Over

NEW YORK—"Pops" are getting popular again. Tradition with good European beer halls, the "Pop" concerts survived only in Boston in the United States until recently. Now their music is bursting out in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Detroit and St. Louis.

Los Angeles and Toledo expect to start them soon. Other cities, big and small, probably will follow.

Much of the success of the Pops concerts comes from the light wines and beer atmosphere inherited from its beer hall background. To provide it, staid Carnegie Hall here converted its art gallery into a tavern for between music drinks and snacks. Concerts are piped into speakers in the tavern.

It built three other bars and serves beer and soft drinks at these and at tables behind the loges where the customers can sit and sup and listen to the music.

Carnegie schedules its food with its music—Russian Piroshki with Tchaikovsky, apple strudel on "Hungarian Night," spumoni and tortoni on "Neopolitan Night," gugelhupf and dalken on "Viennese Night."

To eliminate the clink of glasses Carnegie's management, and the musicians, insisted on paper cups. Otherwise the tavern and bars are like any other.

But in Boston's venerable Symphony Hall, where the Pops began, the clink of glasses is as much a background to the summer classics as the cool green colors with which the walls are decorated as a concession to the season.

The clinking is very subdued, of course, for the patrons of the Pops are more than anything else lovers of music.

"The spread of Pops to other

Even in New York's staid Carnegie Hall, stiff shirts are out of the picture for summertime "Pops" concerts as music lovers relax to enjoy the classics.

cities," says Carnegie Hall's Daniel Rybb, "is an indication of the trend of the times."

"We're getting away from the hectic wartime jitterbug days and settling down to the more sensible music of the masters."

This doesn't mean, as swing fans might suspect, that Pops are all Beethoven. The "Bolero" may follow Bach from the orchestra, just as there may be champagne at one table and beer at another in the audience.

U.S. Burning Oil, Gas Faster Than At Peak Of War; Shortages Develop

By S. BURTON HEATH

NEW YORK — Americans are using gasoline and fuel oils at a rate never before approached—even at the peak of wartime demand.

That, plus a shortage of distribution facilities, is the reason for a "spotty" supply shortage which has led one major company to "ration" gasoline in 12 midwestern states for the summer months, and which may hit both motorists and householders in other ways.

There is no actual shortage of either gasoline or fuel oil now, either in general or even in the 12 midwestern states first feeling the pinch, according to spokesmen for the petroleum industry.

But at the present rate of use, that territory can not be supplied with all the fuel it wants all summer, so the companies are trying to stretch the supply and see that automobiles are not laid up for lack of gasoline during the late summer months.

OPERATE AT CAPACITY

The greatest war-time demand for petroleum products was in May, 1945, when 5,632,700 barrels a day were needed to keep war and essential civilian activities moving. There was a drop-off through October, followed by a pickup so unexpectedly rapid that in December of 1946 demand passed its war peak and reached a rate of 5,980,500 barrels a day.

This exceeds even the rated capacity of American refineries. When the war began, in 1940, the rated refining capacity of the country was 4,721,213 barrels a day. Now it is 5,600,000 barrels a day.

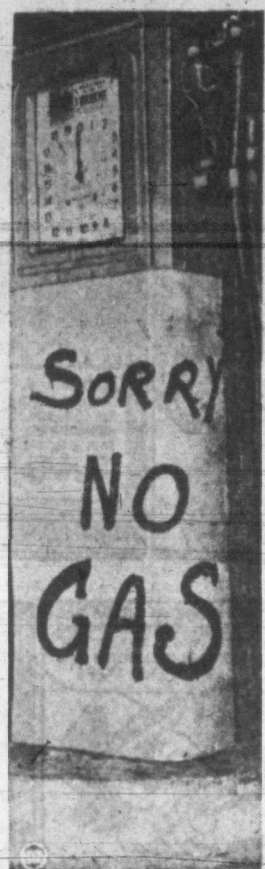

In a desperate attempt to satisfy demand, many refineries have been operating at capacity. One company reports that one of its plants has been running 35 per cent above capacity. But no refinery can ever hold at 100 per cent over a long period.

Overall, during the first quarter of 1947, the industry processed an average of 4,796,100 barrels a day, which is 86 per cent of capacity.

The figure would have been somewhat greater if it had not been for lack of sufficient transportation facilities to get crude from oil fields to some refineries.

Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, admits frankly that the industry did not anticipate such a huge demand as has come. There were millions fewer cars on the road when the war ended, many homes had new insulation and heat-saving devices, and serious reconversion unemployment was predicted. Most economists expected demand to decline to around 1941 level. Economists felt that it would be the early '50's before demand climbed back to war-peak level.

But factories kept working at even higher wages than during the war. Farmers kept on selling their products at good prices, and spent the money on oil burners and gasoline-propelled farm machinery. Railroads and others turned to diesel power. Industries

Return engagement? This war-time gas pump sign will bring back unpleasant memories to many a motorist. And experts fear unprecedented use of gas and oil may bring back the sign itself in some parts of the United States.

trial use of petroleum products remained very heavy. The public might have less usable automobiles—and mostly old ones—but they had what Wilson describes as "an almost insatiable demand for travel by automobile."

"This demand has been particularly heavy in the Middle West," says Wilson, "where increased farm mechanization, the widespread installation of oil burners, and shortages of coal and natural gas resulted in a demand during the first quarter of 1947 that was 40 per cent above the first quarter of 1946."

AMPLE CRUDE SUPPLY

There is an ample supply of crude petroleum in proven reserves, experts say—more than had been located before the war. There still is additional producing capacity in West Texas and Wyoming which is not being used because there is no transportation to get it to refineries. Meanwhile, there are refineries in Oklahoma, Kansas, Illinois and Michigan that cannot work to capacity because enough crude cannot be brought to them.

Also, more than 12,000,000 barrels of products were lost during the first five months of 1947 because of strikes.

Shortages of steel during and since the war have made it impossible to build refineries or enough pipelines to handle the needs. Tank cars, always very expensive, were worn out during the war. The Maritime Commission had 558 war-built tankers as of March 1. It had requests for 337 this month by U.S. companies for domestic and foreign use. But only 169 are in service.

The rest are laid up. Oil companies say they would be glad to buy them—but only if they can be protected against a cut in the government's present asking price, which is 80 per cent of book value.

Exports have not cut much figure in the situation. While we sent out 414,200 barrels last year, we imported 370,000 barrels.

Scots To Display Everything From Ships To Tartans

By JAMES MCCOOK

EDINBURGH (CP)—Scottish business will offer an additional attraction when the international festival of music and drama is held here, Aug. 25-Sept. 13.

Famous orchestras and choirs from Europe and elsewhere will participate in the music festival, but the "Enterprise 1947" will be for home products only, bannocks and scones included.

Selection for the display of Scottish products now is being made from the entries of 1,000 firms. The emphasis will be on postwar goods—"everything from ships to tartans"—and auxiliary displays will spread beyond the main exhibition site to the wide shop windows of Princes Street.

Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, said in giving his blessing to the exhibition that Scottish economy has been dependent on export to a greater degree than that of England. She had developed a reputation for excellence in shipbuilding with its allied crafts and in woolen goods, printing and other manufactures.

But to meet changed conditions Scotland needed to balance her economy with greater diversity of production. Some 300 firms have rented space in Scottish industrial areas designed to facilitate new factory construction and the list of new products already is substantial.

The exhibition restaurant will be operated by the Scottish Women's Rural District Associations and the traditional methods of cooking bannocks, scones and oatcakes will be demonstrated.

George Dibbern Fits TeRapunga For New Voyage

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — George Dibbern—native of Germany and "a world citizen"—who was interned in this country during two world wars, plans to return to his sea-roaming life just as soon as his 32-foot yacht, TeRapunga, is made ship-shape.

Dibbern was interned in New Zealand during the First World War, after which he returned to Germany. Ten years later he decided to sail away in the TeRapunga, a Maori name meaning the first faint stirrings of the mind before a plan of action dawns.

From Germany he sailed to Gibraltar, across the Atlantic to Jamaica, through the Panama Canal to San Francisco, and then by easy stages across the Pacific to New Zealand, four years out from Germany.

From Auckland, Dibbern sailed his yacht to Melbourne to win the second trans-Tasman yacht race. Returning to New Zealand he added Miss Eileen Morris to his crew. She has taken part in most of the yacht's voyages since.

The TeRapunga made a circumnavigation of New Zealand in track of Captain Cook and the other early explorers and then left for Victoria, B.C., where she arrived after a long voyage. Roy Murdoch, now with the Colonial of Victoria, made this voyage.

Gladiolus Thrip Which Causes Severe Damage Now Attacking Other Plants

A tiny, slender bug, now commonly known as the gladiolus thrip, has put in its appearance to cause severe damage to the gladiolus and other bulb flowers during the last several years. For the first two or three years the thrip confined its activities largely to gladiolus and this still remains its host plant, but it now also feeds on a number of other plants of which the following are most widely grown here: iris, hollyhock, delphinium, white clover, goldenrod, asters, narcissus, cucumber and the dandelion and a number of other weeds.

In its different stages of development the gladiolus thrip goes through a range of colors, from whitish yellow to orange, then to light brown. The full-grown adult is black with a white band on its back between the wings. The eggs are deposited in the tissue of the leaf or bulb of the gladiolus. They are smooth, white and bean-shaped. They hatch in only three or four days during hot weather and in 10 to 12 days during cool weather. The first stage larva is almost white, with red eyes. The duration of this stage is only two to three days. Then the second stage of larva is yellow and lasts from two to four days. The third, or pre-pupa, stage is orange in color and has a duration of two to three days. The pupa stage only lasts about two days also, and the color of the thrip is gradually getting darker. All these stages are developed within the leaf sheaves and take only from 8 to 12 days.

EAT OUTSIDE OF PLANT

The adults, on the other hand, spend only a small part of the time in the upper recesses of the leaf sheaves, feeding almost entirely on the outside of the plant. They are dark brown to black in color and about one-sixteenth of an inch in length.

The thrip lives by rasping off the outer tissue of the leaves and sucking the juices from the inner tissues. This results in shiny, white scarrings of the leaves, faded and mis-shaped flowers and failure of the blooms to open due to the spike being damaged from the inside. Other gardeners, in describing the trouble to me, have said the buds "turned rusty-like" or the edges were "curled in a blighted or wilted manner," and still another gardener said the plant looked as if it had been "burned."

The gladiolus thrip is very resistant to the most commonly used garden insecticides. Its habit of developing inside the leaf sheaves adds to the difficulty of control. However, with the proper technique in storing and treating, it can be controlled so that perfect flowers will open. Although gardeners generally plant gladiolus in April, many have found that a successive planting of groups of bulbs in the flower garden at intervals of 15 days until early July will provide a continuous display of flowers all season long until frost.

The TeRapunga sailed for Honolulu and Palmerston Island. In 1941 the yacht arrived dramatically at Napier, New Zealand, in the midst of a fierce storm. Dibbern was interned for the second time in spite of a home-made passport in which he declared himself to be "a citizen of the world."

Dibbern is busy repairing his boat at Auckland and as soon as she is seaworthy he plans to set out in quest of new oceans to conquer.

Lysol is one of the most satisfactory and easy-to-manage thrip preventives that has been brought to my attention. This is used as a pre-planting dip in the spring. Tests made at several experiment stations show that a 100 per cent control of thrip and thrip larvae on the bulbs may be obtained by using a lysol solution at a half per cent strength at planting time. This solution is made by mixing four teaspoons of lysol in one gallon of water.

The bulbs (corms) do not need to be husked or scaled. They may be planted while still wet from the dip; so that all one has to do is to prepare the bath and put the bulbs in it one hour before they are actually planted.

EARLY MORNING WATERING

If the gladiolus are planted in rows by themselves it is easier to water. They may even be sprinkled overhead if this is the only convenient way, but if they are planted among other flowers which cannot stand daytime overhead sprinkling, it is best to water copiously between the plants by irrigating early in the morning.

CARE WHILE GROWING

Gladiolus have a lot of work and growing to do during a fairly short time in the summer, and therefore not only need a richly prepared soil but small quantities of plant food at regular intervals. Because a new corm has to be formed above the old one while the plant is in flower, it is necessary to use a good brand of commercial fertilizer containing potash in balanced proportions to the other ingredients. Gladiolus experts consider that the cause of color streaking in flowers is a heavy potash feeding. This is why a general fertilizer is advised for use. Also, all through the growing period, and particularly when it is in flower, the gladiolus need lots of water. Plant food, you see, in order to be assimilated by the root system must be soluble and contained in plenty of moisture.

The bulb which we planted is at least four inches below the surface. There will be no roots in this top layer of soil, so that moisture there is of less importance. Extending outward and downward from the bulb, we find an intricate root system which may extend as far as two to three feet from the bulb. It is in this section, at the bulb level and below, which must contain the moisture. All watering must be sufficient to be carried below the bulb level in order that the roots will grow down instead of up in search of water.

It is definitely necessary to provide a continuous supply of water that the roots can take up. (This is why sprinkling overhead is of much less benefit.) A day or two before applying any fertilizer give the ground a thorough soaking with water. This allows the plant to drink its fill so that when fertilizer is applied it will be taken up slowly, thus avoiding any chance of an overdose and consequent burning. You can use about a handful of well-balanced garden fertilizer to each 25 bulbs. Apply it about six inches from the plant; scratch it into the soil and water it in. The next day loosen the top soil to conserve the moisture, thereby allowing the fertilizer to be dissolved. Repeat every two to three weeks after the plant is 12 inches high until just before the bloom spike appears. To further insure the use of all the natural soil moisture, light cultivation should be done regularly throughout the spring and summer, besides keeping the weeds down and allowing the sun and air to penetrate to a greater depth.

Dog Notes

A DOG'S CHARGE ACCOUNT

A man in Atlanta, Georgia, taught his Collie "Jack" to carry a coin to the grocery store to buy himself a bone or a biscuit. One day, when his dog begged him for a little change, he discovered that he was short. Instead he wrote a note telling the store manager to charge the cost of a bone to his account. As this turned out to be a more convenient procedure he continued the practice.

At the end of the month when the grocery bill arrived, he went to the store to protest—there being many more items on the bill than he had ordered. While he was arguing with the store owner, "Jack" came in with a piece of blank paper in his mouth. Investigation revealed that whenever the dog wanted a bone or biscuit, he picked up a piece of paper and carried it to the store. After the first two or three written orders, the store owner had not even bothered to look at the paper. Now "Jack" buys his bones on a strictly cash basis.

DOG LEGALLY CAN CHASE CARS

In Canada, there is a law which brands a dog that chases after and barks at horse-drawn vehicles as a mischievous animal and his owner is liable for damages and prosecution. Recently, a dog owner was taken into court, charged with keeping a dog that chased and barked at passing automobiles.

The judge ruled that the old law didn't cover automobiles; even though powered by an engine sometimes rated in horsepower, it is not a horse-drawn vehicle. His ruling made it legal for a dog to chase automobiles in Canada—at least for the time being.

DOGS AND FRESH PAINT

With spring here and a lot of people freshening up their property with new paint, your dog may rub against something that has been freshly painted, his coat becoming matted. This is not serious, but if the dog licks the paint off he may develop lead poisoning.

If this happens, take him to a veterinary immediately. If one is not available the following home treatment will be beneficial: give him a dose of approximately one ounce of Epsom salts dissolved in warm water. If he should vomit the solution, a dose of one grain of calomel and one half grain of opium should be given, three grains of calomel and three quarters of a grain of opium if he is very large. The bowels should then be kept open for two or three days by feeding him a small dose of castor oil.

I have been asked not to reveal the names of the principals in this story but I can assure you of its validity. An executive of one of this country's largest concerns began taking his dog to the office each day. At first the animal spent most of the time curled up at his masters' feet sleeping. Then one day his owner decided to teach him to carry a memorandum to a junior executive in a nearby office. The dog learned quickly and before long was busy each day carrying papers from one office to the other.

Since this worked so well a new system was evolved with equal success. A buzzer was placed in the office of the President of the United States and when the junior executive wants to send in some correspondence he presses a button on his desk. At the sound of the inter-office buzzer the dog gets up and trots into the other office to fetch and bring back any papers or memoranda for his master.

A STRANGE ORDER

A Chicago mail order house recently received an order from a native living on a Far Eastern island. Enclosed with the order, as payment, was a bag containing dog teeth. As some primitive natives still use dog teeth as a medium of exchange and because of the strangeness of the order, the company decided to fill it and accept the teeth as payment. The native had sent for a single item—a dog brush.

THE QUESTION BOX

Question: Can you tell me what a person means when he speaks of the blaze of a dog?—T.L.J.

Answer: The term "blaze" refers to a white color marking on a dog's head between the eyes and running back over the head.

Question: I have been told that a harness is harmful to a dog, and that it is better for him to wear a collar. Which of these do you prefer?—E.W.

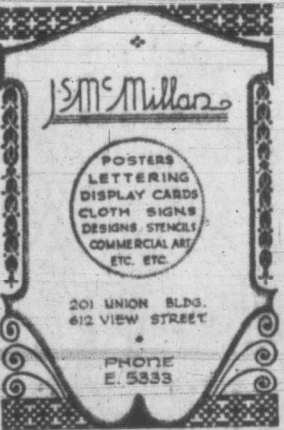

Answer: A harness that fits a grown dog is not harmful, but I don't believe in making a growing puppy wear one as he outgrows it and an ill fitting harness can be harmful to a young puppy.

VISITING VIVIAN

By STANLEY CORDELL

There was no rejoicing in the Barber family when the letter came from Aunt Vivian Randall, announcing that she was arriving that evening for a short visit.

"Short, my foot!" Asa Barber stormed. "That woman doesn't know the meaning of the word. She'll stay a month and make a confounded fool out of herself with her alleged jokes. Ethel, he raged at his wife, 'I won't have it! Either write and tell her not to come or I'll—I'll make her want to leave!'"

"I can't write," Ethel told him. "She already on her way." Mrs. Barber's face wore a distracted look. Tomorrow Aaron Colt of the Wearbetter Tire Co., was arriving to talk about the possibility of establishing an agency in New England.

"Jack Turner's got the measles," Bruce Barber, fourteen-year-old, announced brightly, "and nobody can come to see them."

Asa banged the tables. "Measles! That's it! One of us will contract the measles! Fun-loving Vivian will throw a fit, won't even stop to unpack her bags. To make doubly sure, we'll get that half-witted young friend of Helen over her to give a concert on his saxophone."

The idea might have worked except that Aaron Colt arrived a day earlier than he expected and fifteen minutes before Aunt Vivian. Bruce, thinking the ringing doorbell was an announcement of Aunt Viv's advent, appeared with a face so thickly bespeckled with paint daubs that the whiteness of his skin was barely visible. Aaron Colt stared at him and blinked.

"Good lord, boy, what's that on your face?"

"Measles," said Bruce innocently and proudly.

"Measles! Wow! And I've never had 'em. At my age they'll kill me!" He started for the door, just as Asa appeared.

"Mr. Colt! How are you? You're earlier than we expected. Come in! Come and be comfortable."

"Barber," said Aaron Colt sternly, "what's the idea of inviting me to your home when your boy has the measles?"

Just then Asa caught sight of Bruce and almost swooned. "Good gosh!" he ejaculated, then tried to pass it off as a joke, and instructed the bewildered Bruce to wash his face. Aaron Colt was skeptical, but agreed to remain.

Things were progressing smoothly when Vivian blew in. "Blew" is the correct word. Vivian always appeared places as though a gust of wind had propelled her there. Now she took one look at Aaron Colt and he at her, and they flew into each other's arms. It developed, much to the chagrin of the Barber family, that the two were old friends and that Aaron thought Vivian was a howl.

Directly after dinner Asa managed to get Mr. Colt into his study and practically convinced him that the tire agency could be placed in no better hands. In fact, Aaron was about to sign on the dotted line when from outside the window came a blaring and shrieking that would put a squawking hen to shame. Mr. Colt flew into a rage. There was, it developed nothing that annoyed him more than saxophone playing. He was on the point of leaving when Vivian appeared carrying a saxophone.

"You know," she said brightly, "I've been taking lessons for ten years and I can't play the saxophone yet."

"Why not?" asked Aaron. "I took piano lessons," said Vivian and Aaron practically collapsed with laughter.

Vivian finally announced that she and Aaron were leaving and were going to be married. The Barber family was too stunned to speak.

"Aaron," Vivian explained, "proposed to me ten years ago and has been proposing on and off ever since. I refused him because I was getting a lot of fun out of life. I thought my friends and relatives—she looked at the Barbers significantly—"liked to have me around because I brought a little cheer into their lives. I see now that I was wrong. Now I know that Aaron is the only person in the world who appreciates my jokes. So I'm going to marry him. We're leaving at once. You have your agreement, Asa, and the rest of you have had your fun with measles and so forth, so I'm sure you won't mind."

ANOTHER CINDERELLA

By ADALADE D. HUFF

Will Durham's face lit up as he recognized the familiar, unknown handwriting on the envelope in his hand. Dropping into a chair on the deep comfortable porch of the Westway Club Durham ripped open the flap and hastily scanned the contents. It was much like the others he had received from the same person, whoever she might be.

"Dear Mr. Durham: Here I come on my daily visit. I like to be there to welcome you to your club in the evenings because I feel that it is then a man without a home is the loneliest."

"I saw you yesterday, standing on the corner of Eighth and Market, and it seemed to me that you were looking well. I believe your business projects are being crowned with success. There was alertness in the expression of your eyes that made me glad all over. You seemed full of the zest of life from the tip of your well-shod feet right up to the crown of your well-groomed head. You reeked of success! Am I right? Aren't things going better at the office and aren't you happier than you have been in ages? Now, tell me, isn't it true?"

"Each day I think of you with such sympathy and interest and when I see you and you look happy I am happy for a long time afterward. Sometimes, when I see you I long to put out a hand and give you a little friendly pat and tell you that I know everything will be all right in the end and that I believe in your innocence. I long to do lots of things just to comfort you. I long to let you know who I am, but I'm afraid you might think I was flirting with you when I really am not. That is the only horrid thing about good-looking eligible men; they can't help thinking girls are flirting with them."

"This is enough for now. I'll write you again tomorrow."

That was all. No signature. No date. No address. He was more puzzled than ever; the letters had been coming for months now, and he had grown to look forward to them as he might to the visit of a very dear friend. Who could she be?

Certainly one who was intelligent and observant, else how could she tell by his face that things were going better at the office? Yet, she was exactly right. What insight she must have to write such letters. What did she look like, he wondered, and how old was she and would she, could she ever learn to love him after having been implicated in the Baker Brothers' disgrace? Innocent though he was there had been many who had suspected him of being guilty. There had been the disgrace of the long, grilling trial, and that the whole thing had injured his business reputation he realized only too fully. Yet from her letter, she did not seem to mind this.

The following weeks brought more letters as puzzling as ever. At last, because he felt that he had to talk of it to someone he took his private secretary into his confidence and told her about it. He tried to make his voice sound casual but he betrayed his eager interest by the nervous way he toyed with the things on his desk.

"It's terribly interesting," said little Miss Harmon, when he had finished. "Sort of a Cinderella affair, only it's letters instead of a slipper."

"Exactly," he answered warmly. "If I could only find her? How would you go about it? I haven't done a thing because I couldn't think of a thing to do."

"You might not like her if you met her," said Betty Harmon thoughtfully, glancing up at him with her soft brown eyes.

"I would, I know I would!" he answered fervently. "She's a little saint. I don't care if she's as ugly as mud. She has a heart of gold and that's what makes life worth living. . . . I know you think I'm a fool to talk like that," he apologized hastily.

"I do not!" said Betty emphatically.

He left the office early that afternoon and went out to the club to play golf. Betty received several telephone calls for him after he went away and as usual left notes about them on his desk so that he would be sure to see them as soon as he came down. Something that he had forgotten made him return and a few minutes later he was rushing up the front steps of the modest Harmon home.

"What's the matter?" asked Betty, leaving her seat in the porch swing and going to meet him. Without a word he swept her into his arms, and she felt him kissing her hair.

"How blind I've been! Why didn't I think of it sooner?" he laughed happily. "My little Cinderella. . . . When I saw those notes on my desk written in the familiar backhand that has haunted me for weeks. . . . What a clever little way you had of telling me."

"I thought that was a good way to break the news gently, but it doesn't look a bit like my everyday writing, does it?" she laughed up at him.

"Not a bit. . . . but no wonder you knew when my business was going better," he said.

"It didn't take much guessing," she confessed, "when I kept the books myself, but I thought that would throw you off the track."

"It certainly did!" he agreed happily, "but you'll never fool me again!"

CAREER WOMAN

By R. H. WILKINSON

Portia had repeatedly told him he would be smart, and happier, to forget her and marry someone else. Ivan had at first laughed at her, then pleaded with her.

"I could never be happy with anyone but you. I love you. You know that."

"You may love me now. Later you'll stop. No man can be happy with a career woman. I want to paint pictures more than anything."

"You can!" he cried. "I'll never stand in your way. You can have your career and me too."

She laughed, shaking her sleek, blonde head. "Forget me," she said. "I'm not the only girl in the world. You could be happy with someone else."

"I couldn't. I could never be happy with anyone else. I'll never forget you."

They continued to see each other. Portia thought it would be less cruel than not to permit him to call. Besides, at times when he wasn't making love to her, he was fun. He was fun and it also flattered her vanity. That was natural. Every girl, career or not, likes to be told she is beautiful, likes to know that she is loved. Ivan never let her down.

If she thought he would get used to her, cease loving her, she was wrong. He became more ardent. Frequently he went on business trips, remaining away two, three and sometimes seven and eight days. He always called her the moment he got back.

"I thought of you every minute I was gone. It was torture being away. Will you marry me?"

"Oh, Ivan, you mustn't! You mustn't continue to think of me this way. You must meet someone else."

"Why do you keep saying that? There's no girl in this world as beautiful as you, as lovely as you, no one I could care about. You know that."

"It sounds wonderful! It sounds romantic and glamorous, but it isn't so. There will be another girl. Sometime, I'm sure of it."

"There won't. Ever."

It became a habit. She expected his ardor; accepted it. Automatically and would make the same replies and he the same answers. Then they'd have fun. It was pleasant. Portia didn't mind. She enjoyed it. She could still devote the greater part of her time to painting, to her work, her career.

Another month passed. Then something happened. Portia woke up to the fact that she wasn't cut out to be an artist. It had been a growing feeling in the back of her head for months. The reality came as something of a shock. The thought that all her effort, all her future planning was for nothing rather dismayed her.

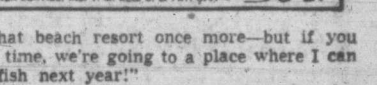

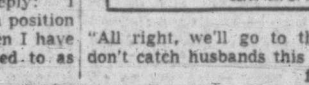

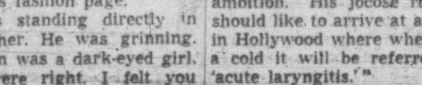

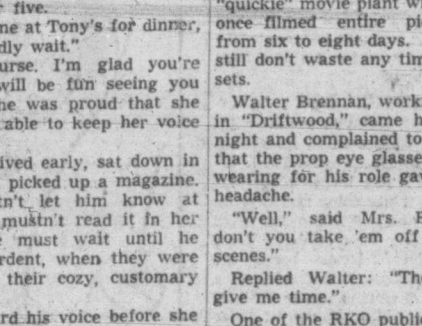

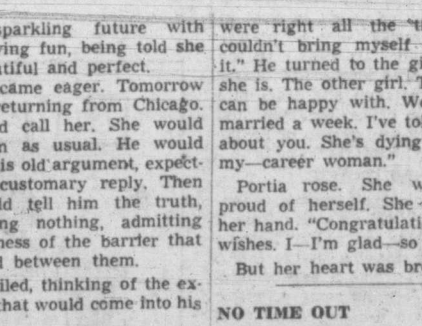

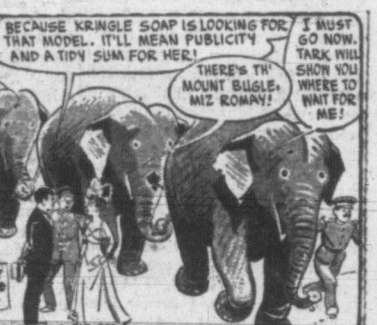

Yet she faced it bravely. Better to admit defeat now than to go on and on, groping, sliding back, experiencing defeat. Better to forestall all that now by being sensible.

She thought of Ivan. With a little shock she thought of him. She remembered all the time they had had together, all the things he had said, his vows, his ardor. And suddenly it flashed across her mind that it had been this career that had stood between them, that had caused her to overlook the true significance of Ivan's regard to her.

Now that the barrier had been lifted she saw vividly what lay beyond. She loved him. She had loved him all the time. The barrier—her career—had been false.

Her heart quickened its beat as she looked into the future—a
